

Warrants Out After Quiz in Dodge County

Report Charges Inmates Neglected, Mistreated

SIX ARE NAMED

Probe Information Sent To Heil and Attorney General

Horicon—(P)—Warrants based on testimony presented in a John Doe inquiry into conditions at the Dodge county insane asylum and poor farm were issued today for the superintendent, Vincent Klink, and four others.

A fifth warrant charges Klink and Dr. Frank O'Neill, Juneau dentist, with attempted extortion of $1,400 on threat of prosecuting Clara Lehmann on a criminal libel accusation.

Justice of the Peace E. A. Raasch issued the warrants following submission of his report that the John Doe investigation developed evidence of neglect, mistreatment and sex irregularities at the institutions.

Klink was charged with eight counts of neglect of patients. His brother, Eugene, a poor farm attendant, was charged with five counts of abuse of inmates. Nicholas Klink, their father, formerly superintendent of the institutions, was charged with three counts of neglect of patients. Julius Lehner, an asylum attendant, was charged with abuse of patients.

More Warrants Likely
"There may be other warrants," District Attorney Clarence Traeger said as the warrants were handed to Sheriff Harold E. Hammer for service. Traeger signed the complaints against the Klinks and Lehner in the neglect and abuse warrants.

Henry Lehmann, husband of Clara and former Dodge county sheriff, signed the extortion complaint against Klink and Dr. O'Neill. Traeger said the defendants probably would be arraigned later today.

Raasch signed a 14-page report of the investigation last night. He said his inquiry made upon two complaints presented by Dodge County District Attorney Clarence Traeger—disclosed competent proof is available to substantiate his report charging, among other things, that:

A male attendant at the county home had taken "indecent liberties with a female inmate," insane patients in some cases even dispensing medicine, male inmates had been permitted to carry knives; spoiled foods had been served under unclean conditions; the asylum contained patients who "ought to be transferred, paroled or released;" county home inmates sometimes returned to the institution in a state of intoxication; authorities had not been properly notified, so coroners' inquests could be conducted; inmates died unattended; labor or poor farm inmates had been used for other than institutional purposes; inadequate fire protection existed, and that wards housing insane patients had been left unattended for long periods.

Other Charges
The insane had been permitted to take care of the insane and poor home inmates in some cases even dispensing medicine, male inmates had been permitted to carry knives; spoiled foods had been served under unclean conditions; the asylum contained patients who "ought to be transferred, paroled or released;" county home inmates sometimes returned to the institution in a state of intoxication; authorities had not been properly notified, so coroners' inquests could be conducted; inmates died unattended; labor or poor farm inmates had been used for other than institutional purposes; inadequate fire protection existed, and that wards housing insane patients had been left unattended for long periods.

Copies of Justice Raasch's report were sent immediately to Governor Julius H. Heil, Attorney General John E. Martin, the state board of control and the department of mental hygiene at Madison, to trustees of the Dodge county home and asylum at Juneau, to the Dodge county board, and to Traeger.

Negro Dives to Death From Window of Train

Sullivan, Ind.—(P)—A well-dressed Negro identified through cards in his clothing as Cason Montgomery, 28, of Chicago, died from the window of a south-bound C. and E. I. passenger train just north of Sullivan today and was killed. His body rolled under the train. Authorities said they were unable to learn of a motive. More than $100 was found in his pockets.

Campbellsport Priest Succumbs in Milwaukee

Milwaukee—(P)—The Rev. Bernard J. Sullivan, pastor of St. Matthew's Catholic church at Campbellsport for 35 years, died here yesterday. He was 73 years old. Funeral services will be conducted at Campbellsport Saturday, with Archbishop Samuel Stritch delivering the sermon.

World War Veteran Is Stricken at Green Bay

Green Bay—(P)—Stephen Coffman, 51, the American soldier who raised the first United States flag on German soil during the World War, died yesterday. He retained until his death the flag he raised at Coblenz, Germany, when the 38th infantry, of which he was a regimental sergeant major, invaded that city. Coffman was a WPA worker. He came to Green Bay after the war from Cleveland, Ohio.

Electrician's Mate Tells How He Held Door Open Long Enough to Save Five More Before Closing Watertight Compartments in Squalus

Portsmouth, N. H.—(P)—Electrician's mate Lloyd B. Maness of Greensboro, N. C., whose "superhuman" effort in closing a watertight compartment door saved the lives of 33 men aboard the stricken submarine Squalus, told today how he held the door open long enough to save five men in the next compartment.

"I was detailed in charge of the bulkhead door between the control room and the after battery," Maness told reporters today. "At the instant that the Squalus settled to the bottom, we were at a sharp up angle and down aft."

"The water was rising rapidly in the after compartment and I realized that the time was short if I was to close the bulkhead door. Due to the angle of the ship and the fact that the door opened from a down angle, I had to exert all my strength to swing it into place."

"I had partially closed the door when several men shouted to me from the rapidly filling after battery."

"They yelled: 'Keep it open. Keep it open.' Whereupon I let the door slip back on its hinges to allow

O'Hara, Blanchard, Isaacs, Boulton

and Washburn to pass through. Immediately I swung the door shut, and turned down the water tight screw and went forward to join the rest of the crew."

"I realize of course that there must have been men trapped in the after compartments, but in an emergency of this kind every bulkhead door in all sections of the ship must be fastened as a measure of safety.

Even those doors forward in the dry section had been closed."

"I know of only one man that was shut in the water-filled control room, John J. Batlick. I had talked with him just a moment before the accident."

"At such times as this, there is no time for sentiment. We are trained rigidly to act, so I gave no consideration of the fate of my shipmates anyone than I would have expected similar consideration had

I been in their place."

"It was not until the first impulsive action was over that I began to feel the awfulness of the men's situation in the after section. Particularly I thought of Sherman Shirley,

Assembly Beats Bill to License Labor Organizers

Reject McIntyre Measure, 73 to 15, on Motion by Catlin

Madison—(P)—The assembly overwhelmingly defeated today the McIntyre bill to license organizers and business agents of labor unions. The vote was 73 to 15.

The house labor committee had reported the measure without recommendation. The motion to reject it was offered by Assemblyman Catlin (R) Appleton, author of the law against "stranger picketing," and Genzmer (D) Mayville. The measure would have required organizers and agents to obtain licenses from the secretary of state at fees of $100 and $25 respectively. Before the final vote it was amended to reduce these figures to $50 and $15.

McIntyre's Charges
Assemblyman McIntyre (R) Lancaster, who introduced the bill, charged that many labor leaders were "unscrupulous and dictatorial." He said "neither the American laboring man nor the American employer want dictation from foreigners." The bill would have required all licensees to be American citizens.

Leading the opposition, Assemblyman Biemiller (P) Milwaukee, an organizer for the American Federation of Labor, charged that the argument about "dictation from foreigners" was a "smoke screen."

He declared the measure was "un-American" and would set up the secretary of state as a "dictator over the labor movement."

this means of so advising them, in order that necessary action, if any, may be taken by them with reference to the existing situation," the justice said in his report. He added: "The complaints upon which this investigation was based, charged malfeasance in office and abuse and neglect of patients and inmates at the Dodge county asylum and Dodge county home from 1933 to date. I will cause warrants to be issued for some specific violation of the law as to particular persons to my attention. In my opinion, other action beside the issuance of warrants would be warranted. I am, however, referring the matter to those to whom this report is addressed for such action as they may deem advisable."

After the report had been made public last night, District Attorney Trager stated: "Upon the basis of Justice Raasch's report I am preparing complaints for criminal violations. Warrants will be ready by morning. Whatever action the state board of control, the department of mental hygiene, or the Dodge county board desire to take, is, of course, up to those honorable bodies. Roland J. Steinhilber will assist in prosecution of those cases commenced by my office."

Nearly 100 Questioned
The probe into conditions at the Jumeau Institutions ended May 2 after nearly 100 persons had been questioned at secret hearings. Justice Raasch said transcripts of the evidence would be kept under his jurisdiction and would not be made public.

STATE MAY ACT
Madison—(P)—Grant Haas, director of the state department of mental hygiene, said today that unless irregularities alleged to exist at the Dodge county insane asylum are corrected, the state will see that no more patients are committed there.

Haas said the department only has inspectional supervision over county asylums and has no authority over employment of the managing personnel. "When I receive a copy of the report (made by Justice of the Peace E. A. Raasch) I will examine it and make recommendations to the board of trustees of the institution," he said. "Under our present reasonable time to comply with recommendations and if that is not done the state can transfer patients out of the institution and refuse to commit any more there."

Vets' Administration Opposes New Hospital

Washington—(P)—The veterans' administration, in a report released yesterday by Representative Bradley (R-Mich.), disclosed it was "unable to recommend" favorable consideration of legislation to erect a United States veterans' hospital at Gladstone, Mich.

Administrator Frank T. Hines said the veteran population of the upper Michigan peninsula was insufficient to justify a hospital of sufficient size to insure economical operation.

Rid College Campus Of Substitute for Famed Granite Rock

The spot on the Lawrence college campus that once held a fine old piece of rough granite and that harbored an unsuitable substitute for a time yesterday was bare again today.

A prosaic slab of concrete, said to have been brought there during the night by a college-spirited band, lay on the grass in front of Main hall for a time yesterday, looking strangely out of place and conjuring up poignant memories of its magnificent predecessor.

Apparently it conjured up more than poignant memories for Lawrence college authorities. During the afternoon, workmen, indifferent to the sentiment attached to the hallowed spot, flung away with sledge at the slab, broke it to pieces, and wheelbarrowed them back down by the river bank.

There it will lie in company with the old chunk of rough granite, the celebrated campus center piece that for 44 years occupied a place on the campus and that was summarily consigned to the rock heap because the yellow paint slapped on it by Carroll college partisans was offensive to the Vikings.

suspended midway between the muddy bottom and the surface.

Divers labored frantically. Finally, four hours later, the giant apparatus was freed and the last men, including Lieutenant Naquin, stepped to the deck of the Falcon.

As that trip was completed, shortly after 10 o'clock p. m. central standard time, rescue operations were suspended until daylight.

As the rescued men—seven in the first trip, nine the second and third trip, and eight the last time—left the big bell, they stepped into a decompression chamber since the rescue was history-making since the successful use of the massive chamber was its first actual test under these desperate conditions.

Then, as they recovered from cold and pressure changes they were brought ashore.

Conserved Oxygen
Disabled shortly after 8:40 a. m. Tuesday morning, when an air induction valve failed to close and allowed tons of water into the after compartment, the Squalus lay on an even keel at the bottom and the men in the forward compartments "took it easy" throughout the long hours to conserve the oxygen.

After telephone communication with the surface, was broken the men settled down to a long wait. Then, for hours, the navy massed its strength for rescue efforts. Finally at about noon yesterday the rescue bell dropped over the Falcon's side and the escape chamber of the Squalus.

The connection was made and blankets and hot soup handed into the sub to ease the biting cold. Seven men stepped inside with the man who came down from the surface and slowly the bell came up.

With the arrival on the deck of the Falcon came first definite news of the casualties. Trapped in the flooded sections of the submarine, Swiftly word was flashed ashore and the heart-rending task of advising relatives was begun.

One wife was seized with hysteria when told that her husband was dead. Other women refused to give up hope, clinging to the belief that in some way, somehow, their men might be alive in the blocked-off, water-filled compartments.

"Thank God, oh, thank God," cried the mothers and wives of the men who came through the ordeal safely. From the survivors themselves came only laconic comments about the bitter cold in the entombing vessel.

I don't think I'll ever get warm again was a common remark from the shivering men as they reached this port, 15 miles from the scene of the disaster.

Dramatic Moment
First man to breathe free air and see the sun after the long confinement was Lieutenant J. C. Nichols. It was a dramatic scene. The sun broke through the clouds just as the bell broke through the ocean's surface. The air was tense with excitement, dread, hope—

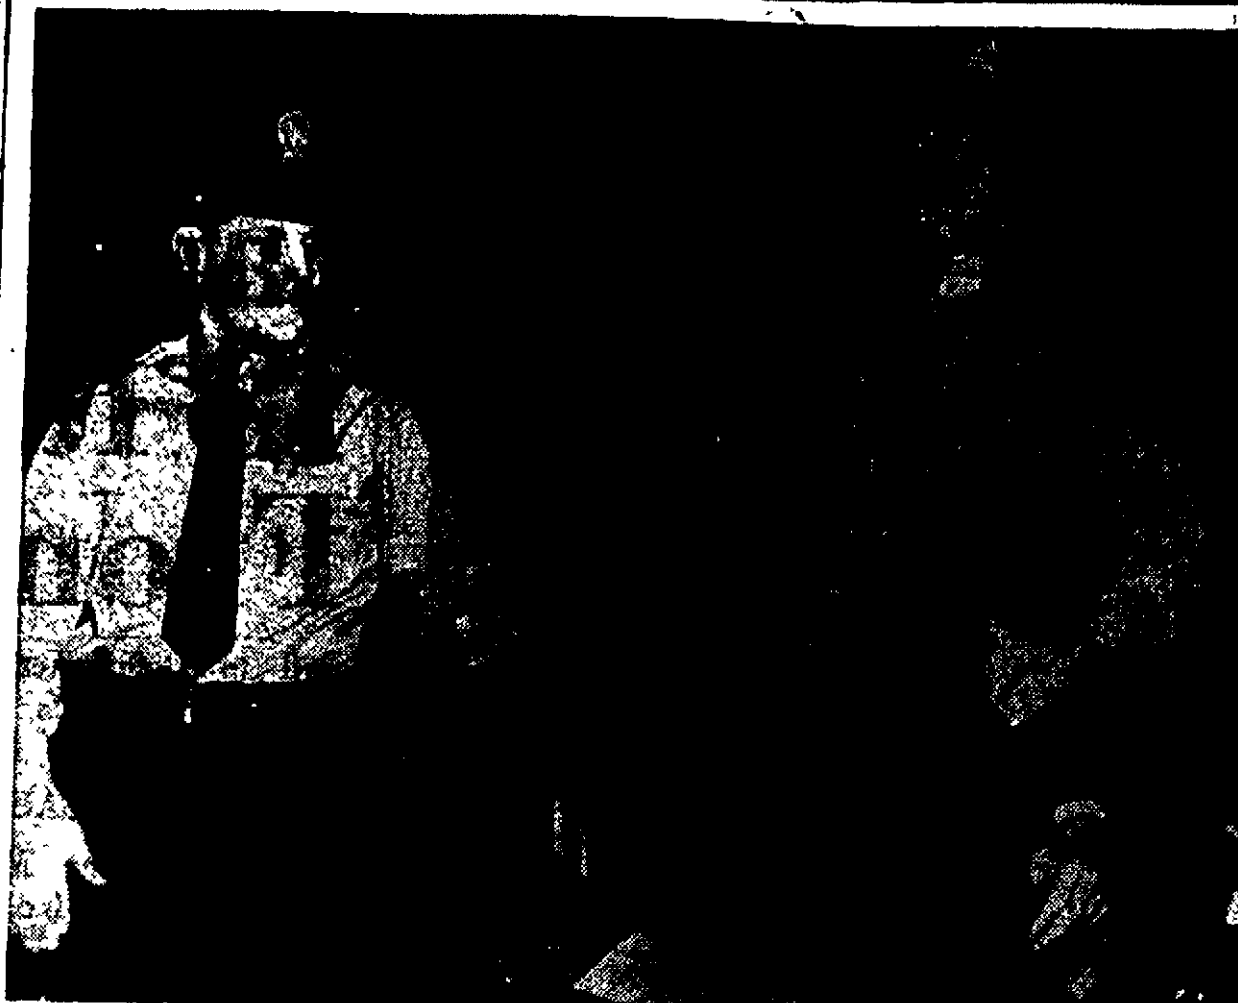

Airplanes circled overhead. A dozen ships, including the big cruiser Brooklyn, floated nearby. Slowly the bell swung onto the Falcon's deck. The hatch in the roof opened and Lieutenant Nichols stepped out into the sunshine.

Cheers broke out from the men on the deck and answering cheers and shouts echoed from the other vessels.

First contact with the Squalus had been made by Frank P. Miller, a Portsmouth navy yard diver, who stepped on the steel hull at 8:22 a. m. (CST).

Difficult Task
"It was a tough dive," he reported later. "The water was extremely cold. I was down on the sub (making the connection for the diving bell) only 15 minutes, but it took about 73 minutes for me to come up and recover."

The bell started down at 11:40 a. m. and began its return trip at 1:18 p. m. Nichols stepped to the deck at

Commander of Squalus Says Death Mercifully Swift for Trapped Members of Crew

Portsmouth, N. H.—(P)—Drawn and haggard, Lieutenant Oliver F. Naquin revealed today that a mercifully swift death, with life snuffed out quickly under tons of icy sea water, was the fate of the 26 men still buried in the sunken submarine Squalus that he commanded.

In hospital attire, sandals, pajamas and bathrobe, Lieutenant Naquin told for the first time, graphically, the tragic story of the sinking of his craft last Tuesday.

"I was in the control room at the time of the dive. The accounts are too technical to attempt to discuss before the ship is raised and I do not intend to discuss them."

"My officers and men performed 100 per cent duty. There was never any doubt in my mind at all that we would come up, especially after we heard from the Sculpin that the Falcon was underway. The Sculpin

1:45 p. m. Then, persistently, the chamber continued its elevator-like trips which continued until shortly after midnight. There was not a hitch until the last ascent.

Spokesman for the rescued men was Judson Thomas Bland of Norfolk, Va., an electrician's mate, who told a grim but heroic tale of courageous navy fortitude.

"There was no panic—none whatsoever," he told interviewers. "Every word from every man was a cheerful one. I'm not afraid to say that not one man ever thought he would not be rescued."

He said the air in the sub "got a little bad" just before the rescue, but that was due, he said, to efforts to conserve the oxygen. The survivors were hospitalized promptly but naval spokesmen said they believed all would survive and be released from the hospital during the day. Some, however, were suffering shock and might be held a few days.

Legion Head in Poppy Day Appeal

Wilke Calls on Veterans To Support Sale of Memorial Flowers

World war veterans of Appleton today were urged by Paul Wilke, Oney Johnston post commander, to pay tribute to their comrades who died in the World war by wearing poppies on Poppy Day Saturday.

"The poppy is the memorial flower of the World war dead," the American Legion commander said. "It brings the visions of the poppy-studded fields of France and Belgium where so many of our comrades gave their lives in the nation's service."

"Every World war veteran, of course, will join with other patriotic citizens by wearing a poppy on Poppy day and contributing as they are able to the fund which will afford to the welfare of those who are still suffering from the war, the disabled veterans, their families, and the families of those who have died."

The auxiliary of the Oney Johnston post will sponsor the poppy sale throughout the city's residential district Saturday.

Debate Financing Of Public Hunting Grounds in State

Author Says Bill Will be Amended to Meet Objections

Madison—(P)—The "public hunting grounds" bill of Senator G. Eric Ingram (P), Eau Claire, will be amended to meet objections against land purchases which would affect local tax rolls, Ingram told the joint finance committee yesterday.

The bill, which would raise hunting license fees from $1 to $2 a year, had been referred to the committee together with another by Ingram establishing a $1 general fishing license fee for all persons more than 18 years old.

The former was given an unfavorable report by the senate's education and public welfare committee before it was sent to the finance committee, which is to determine whether either measure would result in an expense to the state if enacted.

State Funds Unaffected
Assurance the state's general funds would not be affected was offered by Ingram, William Grimmer, game management superintendent for the conservation department, and William J. P. Aberg, representing the Wisconsin division of the Isak Walton League.

Grimmer said tentative plans called for acquisition of about 500,000 acres, primarily in southern Wisconsin, for use as a public hunting ground. An expenditure of between $200,000 and $250,000 a year—come from the increased in the license fee—would be required for leases, warden patrols, stocking and damage claim allowance, Grimmer estimated.

An objection to the outright purchase of these lands was made by Senator Otto Mueller (R) of Wausau, committee chairman, who questioned whether they would be removed from the tax rolls, resulting in a revenue loss for the towns in which the hunting grounds were located.

Gives Assurance
Ingram and Senator Ambrose Collier (R) of Neenah, a finance committee member, assured Mueller they "would take care of such objections when the bill reached the senate floor."

No opposition was registered to the general $1 fishing license fee, which Ingram declared would result in no expense to the state and which Aberg said was a "very meritorious bill" that should be passed.

Before being referred to the finance committee, the fishing bill was recommended for passage by the state and local government committee and was engrossed in the senate.

At the present time only rod and reel fishermen pay license fees.

Freedom of Radio Is Threatened by FCC Restriction

Blunder Can Mean Beginning of Fascist Censorship, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The Federal Communications commission has just made a blunder which, if uncorrected, can mean the beginning of a fascist censorship of the press as well as the radio in America. The action taken, namely the ordering of radio stations to broadcast only international programs of "good will," is a form of regulation by the government of what shall or shall not be said over the radio.

This restriction is contrary to what President Roosevelt himself promised on May 9 in a public statement in which he limited the function of government as to radio merely "to such controls of operation as are necessary to prevent complete confusion on the air." He then added significantly: "In all other respects the radio is as free as the press."

Mr. Roosevelt, in his brief comment, repeated what the supreme court of the United States has said. When the scope of federal regulation of radio came before it, Chief Justice Hughes made it clear in a unanimous decision that the government's power over radio related to the allocation of facilities. Congress, moreover, does not recognize the right of the Federal Communications commission to deal with the content of radio programs, unless, of course, they run counter to the customary laws of libel or the dissemination of obscene or fraudulent matter.

Good Will
If now, however, a governmental commission may say what is or is not international good will, censorship in fact exists. For there are differences of opinion as to what constitutes good will. During the recent civil war in Spain, and the same rule being operative, one faction in America might have insisted that radio broadcasts from New York designed to reach the Spanish people were not "good will" and another might have insisted that the broadcasts were a splendid moral support.

The power of the federal government to limit the freedom of speech or of the press has a background of established precedents, but it is quite possible that, if radio opens up now a new avenue of governmental regulation, the president's public comment of May 9 may come to mean that in all respects the press is just as free as radio.

For it is a short step for the federal government to contend that, because newspapers carry second class mail, they can be said to be to their content. The supreme court has always rejected such an interpretation, but suppose the post office department, acting on a request from some other government department, should say that all editorials or printed articles which do not tend to promote "good will" should be prohibited from publication in newspapers or magazines exported to foreign countries. Would that not be on all fours, so far as governmental power is concerned, with the latest action of the Federal Communications commission?

The commission has made it clear in its public announcement that radio stations which do not obey the order will possibly lose their licenses. So also an arbitrary government could say that all newspapers which do not conform to the government's ideas of what constitutes good will in published articles shall lose second class mail privileges.

Whatever concerns the regulation of the contents of radio programs concerns equally the contents of newspapers. It can hardly be said that radio is a different art. For, today, broadcasting stations are used to transmit by radio the copies of what are known as facsimile newspapers. Likewise, television comes through radio broadcasting stations, and, if the federal communications commission obtains the right to censor what is said in international programs by threatening to discontinue a license, it can do so with respect to television, too. This means that speakers can be kept from public appearance in any form of radio facilities if their ideas of "good will" do not correspond to those of the government censors in Washington.

It would have been a simple matter

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Libby

"You women are so hard to please! Why aren't you satisfied with the birthday present you bought me?"

ter for the communications commission to have transmitted as a matter of patriotism any request from the department of state to radio stations broadcasting international programs. In the period of the World War, the entire American press operated on that very kind of informal voluntary basis. The same end would have been obtained by asking and not ordering radio stations or threatening them with loss of licenses.

Injunction Suit
As it is, the case is one which doubtless will attract the attention of the American Civil Liberties committee, which has done yeoman work in preventing reactionary influences from cutting down the opportunities of liberal expression identified with freedom of speech in America. An injunction suit against the commission, asking the courts to restrain the commission from applying any such order to a radio station, might be one way of getting the issue decided, for it is one of the most important things that have happened since radio began to be regulated. It is hardly an accidental move, because, for the last three years, various members of the commission here have in public speeches indicated their belief that the commission has a legal right to censor programs, or that congress can order censorship just because wave lengths are licensed by the federal government. So, also, are second class mail facilities a government privilege, but it has never been abused with the consent of the courts.

Berle Plan Would Modernize Long-Term Loan Facilities

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Recently President Roosevelt asked the O'Mahoney temporary national economic committee to gather suggestions as to how idle men, idle machines and idle money—all of which we have in abundance—might be put to work.

It is a healthy sign that in the committee hearings no panaceas are being shoved at us, no Townsend schemes, no green-back mustards, no magic medicine guaranteed to restore lost youth overnight. Numerous specific proposals are offered by witnesses as aids, though no complete cures. Witness generally emphasize that the most that can be done is to provide tools for both private and public initiative.

Modernization of banking facilities to provide easier access to capital was offered as one helpful suggestion by A. A. Berle, Jr. At the moment he is an assistant secretary of state but his main work has been as an expert in finance. He is one of the original New Dealers who is credited with having kept his feet on the ground.

Only a few highlights can be distilled here out of Mr. Berle's remarkable discussion. We have done a good job in devising elastic money Raymond Clapper and short-term credit, principally through the federal reserve system, so that during the crop-moving season, for instance, the old money stringency has disappeared and the supply expands and contracts to fit the current needs of business. Berle considers money as a tool of business. We have found ways to make this tool adequate to the job in current short-term operations.

But in long-term operations—capital for plant construction, for instance—our financial system is too rigid. It operates about as it was set up by the Rothschilds during the Napoleonic wars. The great need is for flexibility and accessibility regarding abundant capital funds (as distinguished from current operating funds).

Construction Expenses Would Be Separated

A complicating factor is the expansion of public social services in modern times, calling for huge outlays for hospitals, roads, bridges and such public works which are not profit-making enterprises in the ordinary sense. We have treated these public investments as ordinary government expenses, along with the current operating expenses of the department of justice, adding them, if revenues are short, to the regular government debt. Such construction expenses should fall into a separate public-investment category.

Then comes the problem of financing the smaller business. The big stabilized industries, such as steel, either are self-sufficient or else can go into the securities markets and float large issues, or directly place these with life insurance companies or other institutions. The smaller businessman has difficulty in finding capital as the foregoing methods are closed to him.

Berle Offers Three Immediate Suggestions

Berle's three immediate suggestions are as follows:

1. Create a public works finance corporation, with federal reserve bank rediscount privilege, to finance self-liquidating public works. Advances also would be made to municipalities for housing, hospitals and other necessary local improvements. Interest charges would be varied depending upon the extent to which the project might be self-liquidating, so that for some only a nominal charge would be made. The purpose is to take this type of social investment out of the regular government budget for operating expenses.

2. As a temporary measure, enact the Mead bill enabling the government to insure loans for small business, thus placing the operator under the $1,000,000 line, who cannot finance himself internally, on a par with large corporations who have access to ample capital.

3. Create capital credit banks, whose business it would be to provide capital for those enterprises which need it, making such capital Eight grade commencement exercises were to be held in the grammar room Thursday afternoon. Harry Steffen will be the speaker.

The grammar room held its picnic Wednesday and the primary and intermediate rooms will hold their picnic Friday at the Commercial club park.

equally available either to federal or local governmental units and to private enterprise. Details were not offered.

With these three bills, Mr. Berle said, we would have tools so that initiative and ideas could go to work, and so that our financial system could do what is expected of it, namely to permit men, materials and ideas to combine in satisfying obvious needs of the country, and also in meeting the increased demands which the less fortunate part of the population properly makes on the system as a whole. This, he says, is no panacea. Nevertheless he recommends it as excellent medicine.

Junior Conservation League Organized at Waupaca High School

Waupaca—Waupaca's Junior Conservation league, sponsored by the senior league, met at the high school Tuesday afternoon for organization and election of officers. The league decided to meet the first and third Tuesdays of each month at 7:30 p. m. at the clubhouse when members of the sponsoring league will be in attendance for instruction along conservation lines. The program at the first meeting, June 6, will be in charge of Laverne Johnson, Roger Forseth and Harland Neuman.

A demonstration of fly casting was given the boys by Gaylord Roberts. More than sixty boys attended.

MOSCOW RETREATS FROM MOSCOW

In two important respects Russia has recently committed itself to a further acceptance of the capitalism it has denounced and derided.
Dictator Stalin has given his full approval to the new privileged class which he calls the intelligentsia, and which is better paid, better clothed, better treated, and leads all around better lives than the mass of Soviet citizens.
Stalin defines the intelligentsia to include those who have by reason of higher training or education fitted themselves for particular places of value to the state. This, of course, has been the entire argument of capitalism since the start of time. Thus, engineers, architects, surgeons, economists, lawyers, scientific workers, professors, pharmacists, scientific agriculturists, and the like form a class in the so-called classless society. They are particularly buttressed by the warning of the dictator that the common run of clay only makes itself ridiculous by regarding the intelligentsia as "a force hostile to the working class and peasantry." In addition Russia has the official class and the army class, both extensive and resting upon the broad shoulders of workers and farmers.

But, as if this blow were not enough, the line of demarcation is accentuated by the Russian declaration that it is making a plentiful amount of champagne, and that champagne is for its privileged classes.

Champagne contains about 20 per cent alcohol. It is an expensive drink, often called "wealthy water" because of the time and labor employed in maturing it. The bubbles that constantly arise fascinate children and the cost fascinates the ladies and the slightly inebriated. It is harder to drink, perhaps, than any other alcoholic beverage because few can swallow it without gulping and the depths of prolonged headaches it is said to produce for those who over-indulge have never been plumbed.

Yet Russia in all its naive simplicity regards champagne as "a cultural drink," and believe that it can please many of its people, and make them much more class-conscious, by giving them this aristocratic punchbowl while the poor bohemians called "workers and peasants" still drink raw potato vodka.

At the base, however, of both these moves there are sound reasons and purposes. Russia must get its work done. In a classless society the only way you get work done at all is with a gun or some other form of threat or compulsion. For, the lowest rung in the ladder of life must set the pace for the classless society.

Russia is making a bold and sincere attempt to get back to the safety of capitalism. It is moving slowly and sometimes childishly but it is moving.

Yet the strange thing is that it must never admit the result of what it is doing. That might make useless great libraries that have been written to tell the world that Russia, the hope of the human race, the home of the classless society, would never do exactly what it has just done.

MR. AMIE SECURES A CLIENT

We do not see why there should be such hot objection to giving Mr. Amie $4,600 a year out of the treasury as some sort of an assistant in the land department while he stays at home and tends to such other business as may come across his desk.

Mr. Amie has been a beautiful rest-room distributor of the New Gospel and although at times he has wandered afield from what the President calls his "objectives" that is nothing strange as witness the case of Father Divine and his angels, some of whom are always jumping the fence to try another field of clover.

If a good supporter of the administration with a mellow voice cannot get enough business in his own law office to make a living why shouldn't the government pay him $5 a day, the year round? Surely the Administration must apply its "objectives" to its own crowd.

Mr. Amie is an amiable gentleman, a fine fellow, and we are happy to see him getting his nearly $100 a week out of the borrowed money of the government and paid by an administration which added 300,000 pay-rollers just like him under a promise to cut the list that was in office under Mr. Hoover, and is still unembarrassed when it talks about honor in public life.

But to appoint Mr. Amie to the Interstate Commerce Commission to further wreck those railroads that are already off the track—that was no joking matter and had to be stopped. If the administration were in the flush of victory as it was prior to the last election it probably would have put Mr. Amie in as a financial or economic adviser where he could have done a good deal of harm of a first-class order. He might have taken Senator Brookhart's place. The noble lam duck from Iowa, it may be gently remembered, received $12,000 a year and was called "Economic Adviser." That is akin to Governor Heil's Colonels. It gave a title upon a subject that the recipient knew the least about.

THE ITALIAN AND HIS COFFEE

Italy concedes that the bill for its army and navy is so high something must be filched from the table of the people. Among other things the Italians at first determined to cut coffee to the lowest possible amount and use the money heretofore devoted to this drink of peace and good fellowship for the purchase of those materials necessary to forge into guns and other equipment.

Achille Starace, spokesman for Fascism, urged the people to observe that real Italian patriots won't be drinking coffee but instead "juices of grapes and fruits."

It is customary in modern Italy to bank anything and everything on the Italy of the Caesars. If the Romans of twenty centuries ago, when Rome ruled the world, drank a certain beverage, ate a certain food or acted in a certain way it must needs be right. Augustus Caesar never saw a cup of coffee. Enough. But he never saw gasoline either, nor bombs, nor airplanes.

The Italy of twenty centuries ago was a vastly different affair than the Italy of today. For the former Italy glutted its people with the finest of foods and rarest of drinks gathered far and wide and never pinched the pocketbook or entered complaint. Today it is an insult for a Roman aristocrat to serve a foreign wine at a banquet but twenty centuries ago he would have been ashamed not to have served one.

The wars of ancient Rome were successful affairs. They poured into the public coffers a constant stream of gold. They brought lands and peoples and riches, and although they brought responsibilities, too, the cruel exactions inflicted upon those under the thumbs were made for a while at least sufficiently high to pay the bills.

No, talk as it will, or act as it may, the Italy of Mussolini is not the Italy of the Caesars. It may have the same salute and adorn its cities with similar marble busts but it is largely a copy of the thunder and the noise, the outer dress sans pockets and pocketbooks.

STOCKHOLDER AND COMPANY

Efforts of minority groups in well known corporations to unseat the executive officers in charge of operations are something like the winter book made for the Kentucky Derby. They sound good during the long months prior to the contest but they work out very poorly.

From the Wahl company of Chicago, well known manufacturer of fountain pens and pencils, to the Western Union at New York some of the most ambitious plans to unseat the rulers have failed, and utterly.

In almost all the cases the opposition has not been a mere spout that bubbled its little hour and then dried up but was supported by strong houses and reliable individuals who were not satisfied that all was well and complained particularly that too many of those entrusted with management had little or no financial interest in the company.

The theory that has broken, on the rocks in all these cases is one that SEC has supported for long. But it runs counter to human nature. Only in rare instances will a stockholder take enough interest in the welfare of his company to actively participate in its affairs. It is almost necessary to prove to him directly that the management has either been stupid or dishonest to arouse his interest. And only in a depression like that prevailing, where heavy losses have resulted, can a corporal's guard be gathered together to challenge the right of ruling directors to rule again.

There is no place in the world perhaps where men must trust others so completely as in the conduct of corporate affairs. Rebellious stockholders who have staged outbursts in the past, even prolonged ones, have usually concluded that the debate over the company's affairs has not advanced its interests and that those who have been in charge of its business from day to day, unless guilty of wanton misconduct, are better qualified to carry on than a new and untried slate.

A Verse for Today

A PATCH OF BLUE
The clouded sky bore a brave patch of blue. A speck of color in the dark. And suddenly the sun came bursting through. Shedding new glory on the drooping park. Soon in your skies, where sorrow has spread. Appealing water your tear-dimmed eyes will view. A sight to bring all joy and courage back To grieving hearts—a little patch of blue.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—It was at the Fair, and it was night. I sat alone on the top of the New York State Aqueduct drinking in with my eyes the fairland illumination.
Searchlights danced against the sky or wandered and lurched about searching out architectural objects of art. In the Lagoons of Nations the waters leaped and frolicked in blue and red floodlights. Whizzers of sputtering fire raced low across the water, stopped, whirled, went speeding on until they died of exhaustion.
Orange, red, blue and yellow lights trembled in var-sized tubes of glass. Moving ribbons of incandescents traced the designs of buildings against night's background. Fireworks flowered in the sky, fell earthward, faded. Rockets blazed in wide arches and exploded at their zenith.

Watching, there came unconsciously a feeling of the unlimited power of Man. These unbelievable beacons were his. The trees which even had been no more than shadows if left by themselves became leafy sentinels of silver and green elegance in the floodlighting Man had given them. The tulip beds, richly flowered, would have slept, their beauty lost in the darkness, save for the soft rivers of Edison's genius that flowed over them. Even the grass, humblest of the garments in Nature's wardrobe, was a silkier green in the diffused glow of electricity.
Man had done this! Man had laughed at Nature and with the ledgerdom of his laboratories turned night into day. Man, rioting with ingenuity and intellectual magic, has made a paragon Paradise. Man has mastered matter!

Then, as I marvelled, there appeared majestically in the eastern blackness a Yellow Ball. The mighty searchlights, so awesome before, groped toward it and were lost. The blues and greens and reds that had played so haughtily on the lagoon waters seemed puny now.
Slowly the Yellow Ball climbed. It poured forth its glow with a prodigality that made the blazing brilliance of Man's genius cheap, tawdry, toylike. It had solemn eyes, the suggestion of a nose and a mouth that smiled.

Higher it climbed, not with the fuss and sputter of Man's powder-powered rockets but slowly, as though lifted by the gentle hand of God Himself.
To create a dome store paradise thousands of men had labored with brain and hand—mining coal and metal, melting furnaces to wild dynamos stretching miles of wire, spending fortunes. When it was done, the Man-Geniuses had climbed into their top hats and monkey suits and thrown out their chests and said, if not aloud at least to themselves: "See what I, Man, have done!"

But all the Master of the Moon had said was: "Let there be Light." And there was Light.

The sight of that moon rising over the Fair will never leave me. Its pertinence was too clear to be forgotten. Many others who saw it must have got the same message: "You are very smart, my children, with your synthetic suns; I do hope you don't blind yourselves."
Higher and higher rose the Moon. One by one, the Man-made lights went out. The Fair's night was over. From the zenith of Heaven as we trekked wearily onward, the golden, resplendent Moon smiled down. I am not sure but I thought I caught her winking slyly around the corner of the earth at her daddy, the Sun.

MY YESTERDAY

By mail a lovely letter for Rusty from five Cocker Spaniels in Selma, Alabama.—Smoky Joe, Pinky, Happy, Susie Q and Dixie Bud. They said they had all gone looking for wild Iris along the banks of a brook with their mistress. They didn't find any Iris, but Dixie Bud found a frog and was entranced with its hopping. "I would put out my foot, Rusty," wrote Dixie Bud, "and Mr. Frog hopped away, much to my amazement."
This was very tiring, the Cockers reported, so in the afternoon they went to sleep under the shade trees.
"If you get down this way, Rusty, you'll have fun out at our place," the Cockers wrote. "There are rabbits and squirrels to chase, and even a cat. We never catch the cat, but of course we really don't want to. We can show you, a city dog, that we country dogs have more fun than you do."

I read the letter to Rusty who accepted it with his usual lack of appreciation of life's finer things.

Looking Backward

25 YEARS AGO
Thursday, May 28, 1914

A clean sweep in intercollegiate activities was won by Lawrence college the previous day when the track team took first place in the state meet at Ripon. Abramson was high point man with a total of 24 points. He took first in the high jump, first in the shot put, second in the discus throw, third in the hammer throw, first in the pole vault and first in the broad jump.

Six Appleton High school athletes were to leave for Ripon Saturday to enter the state meet. They were Harry Bunks, Bonnell Little, Reeve Colvin, Carl Fahlsstrom, Alfred Bradford and Carl Schmieg.

Attorney Mark S. Catlin returned from Oshkosh the previous evening in his new Case auto. He was accompanied by A. K. Ellis.

By a vote of 1,048 to 298, Manitowish turned down the commission form of government. It carried in but one ward.

10 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 23, 1929

Stocks staged a broad rally on the New York Stock exchange that day, making up a substantial portion of the losses suffered in the previous day's drastic break. Trading, however, was in comparatively moderate volume, the day's turnover falling short of 4,000,000 shares.

Prices of gasoline advanced another cent at Neenah. Menasha and Appleton Thursday. Low test gas was then selling at 22.6 cents a gallon.

Directors for all Appleton playgrounds that summer had been appointed by Director A. C. Denney and approved by the Civic council. The men who were to work on the grounds that summer were Robert Roemer, Mel Henrich, John Cinkosky, Noel Ansorge, Norbert Berg, Lydia Becker, Helen Gilman, Ora Zuehlke, Florence Hitchler, Marie Tumm and Agnes Herty.

Roosevelt's foreign policy when up rose Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.) to orate at length—the report fills nearly three pages in the Congressional Record—on the subject of Wisconsin cheese.

All cheese, said the senator, is admirable, but Wisconsin cheese is superlative. He continued: "There is something about cheese that is productive of good. It does not create gas on the brain, and without gas on the brain this country will not go to war. Cheese will not cause one to make a wild statement. It will not cause one to hate the Germans, the English, the French, the Italians or anyone else, but it will make one love his own country."
"I hope in a few days to have one of our Wisconsin cheese for all the members of the senate, and I expect to see resulting smiles on their faces and much improved health."
An excellent idea. And may the supply be replenished frequently! For if any group of men is in need of a food guaranteed not to create gas on the brain or cause the making of wild statements, the senate is it.—New York World-Telegram.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—In Congress there is something akin to a tax revolt, led by most of the Senate Finance Committee and a part of the House Ways and Means Committee, the two congressional tax committees.

There is little tax accord between President Roosevelt and the two revenue committees. Hints of it bob up in unguarded statements and off-the-record conferences. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and his tax experts are reputedly sympathetic with desires of the Senate committee and part of the House committee for tax revision to remove business deterrents.

At his press conference and at conferences with congressional tax people, President Roosevelt has indicated he is lukewarm to such revision.

Senator Harrison, chairman of the finance committee, has exchanged warm words with the President. That is not a secret. Yet as it stands now, each is fairly well aware in what direction the other wishes to go. Within limits, each will have his way, as they are not headed in opposite directions.

As observers on Capitol Hill view it, the President would be happy to see taxation forgotten. This session, believing that once the taxation question is opened, the groups eager to remove business deterrents will go farther than he wishes. But taxation cannot be forgotten. A host of small taxes expire June 30. Several important corporation taxes expire December 31. Tax legislation must start in the House, but because these taxes are expiring, the House committee cannot escape opening the question, even though Rep. Doughton, ways and means chairman, sympathizes with the President's position.

For two years the senate and House committees, in conjunction with Treasury tax experts, have been talking over tax revision. In the case of the Senate committee and the Treasury, they are evidently in harmony.

And among the things they seemingly harmonize on are:

1. Big money individual investors, paying as much as 75 per cent federal tax on top bracket earnings, with state taxes in addition, won't speculate in common stock risks. Senatorial proposal: Trim the top bracket down, perhaps to 60 per cent, lower brackets proportionately. Hope: That speculators, with profits in sight, will speculate on new ventures and start new businesses.

2. Little corporations, earning less than $25,000 yearly, will continue to get special treatment of lower taxes, as now.

3. Big corporations, tax guinea pigs for three years, may be soothed with a variety of revisions. Troublesome excess profits tax and undistributed earnings tax may be repealed while the flat net earnings tax of 164 per cent is increased to 18 per cent as a replacement.

Harrison and others of the Senate Finance Committee understand that the President does not cotton to all this catering to big business and big investors. But Senate Democrats know that if anything is to be done to restore business before 1940 elections, it must be done now. Next year will be too late to bring results.

By Bob Barns

It seems to me that no matter how much money a man makes, he always complains about paying his taxes. I know a big director out here in Hollywood who makes five thousand dollars a week and when the tax collector comes around the director opens a bottle of Champagne and while they drink it the director started telling the tax collector about all his expenses, dependents and back-bills—before the tax collector left, they were both crying.

My Grandpa Snazzy had his financial worries figured out pretty good. He used to say, "All a man's got to do is stand on his own feet with his back to the wall. Keep his ear to the ground, his shoulder to the wheel and his nose to the grindstone and he can usually make both ends meet."

Device Makes Music From Beams of Light

Louisville, Ky., (U. P.)—Dr. Donald Bennett used a device constructed of an electric battery, a tin can, a photo electric cell, a revolving disc full of holes and an amplifier to play "Old Black Joe" and "My Old Kentucky Home."

Bennett, a University of Louisville physicist, played the tunes by directing a beam of light on the revolving disc. Mechanical impulses that he set up caused the apparatus to emit tones differing as the light strikes it through differently spaced holes. The amplifier makes the sound audible to the human ear.

The outfit was a part of an engineers' day exhibit on Bellkap campus.

DECIDES OWN SENTENCE

Indianapolis, Ind., (U. P.)—Judge John R. McNelis gave Cecil Shock a novel way to settle the speeding charge against him.
"This is my first offense and I haven't very much money," Shock told the judge.
"Then I'll let you set your own fine," said Judge McNelis.
"A dollar and costs and costs suspended," Shock ruled.
The judge agreed.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Several recent events have again raised a question which might be put like this: "Why are there so many dolts in the state legislature?"

Business and industry, agriculture, capital and labor, in Wisconsin are more directly affected by what transpires in the two houses of the Wisconsin legislature than by the doings of any other agency of government except possibly the congress in some instances. Yet the house roll calls contain the names of men who are qualified neither by experience, intellect, or temperament to be members.

There are members of today's legislature who vote on bills without knowing what they contain. They haven't read them. There are others whose comments lead observers to the conclusion that they wouldn't understand very well what the bills signified if they had read them.

Those men—and they are not isolated examples—tend to confirm the statement of some old-timers of trustworthy memory who recall the days of old. Formerly, it is often said, Wisconsin legislators were of higher calibre.

Which makes it interesting to speculate on the reasons.

BONOR

It should be said at the beginning that the membership of the state senate—this year as in former years—is of indisputably higher stature, collectively, than the membership of the state assembly.

Yet senators and assemblymen are paid the same salaries. Moreover, in the aforementioned olden days, legislators were paid only a quarter or less of their present compensation. Apparently the financial return to those who are elected to office won't guarantee quality, while it may be argued that it has resulted in a deterioration.

Every assemblyman now sitting in the chamber would gladly exchange his position for one in the state senate. About half of them are potential candidates for the senate in the next election. Why the difference in the desirability of the two legislative offices?

First is the fact that the senatorial job is harder to get. There are more candidates in the primary; the victor represents more people. The assembly ticket is frequently the last to be filled in county caucuses. The district attorney, the sheriff's office are the sought after jobs. In some instances party committees have to draft candidates to run for the assembly.

Then there is the matter of the title. An assemblyman is plain "Mr." to the public and to the lobbyists; on the roll calls and in debate, he is "the gentleman from so and so." A senator is called by his title, because the word is castor to pronounce less awkward. And a senatorial title is deeply craved, as is witnessed by the fact that it is borne over after by the man who was elected to a senatorship.

The senator is also elected for four years; he has at least one session in which he can vote with a greater degree of independence than can his colleague in the lower house who has to face the pressure groups at every state election. Further, he can reduce his campaign expenses.

Personal Health Talks

DAZZLED BY GLARE?

Generally glare is harmful, a strain on eyesight, fatiguing to vision and to patience, a cause of painful and serious eye inflammation, and, as thousands know to their sorrow, a cause of many traffic accidents.

Unreasonably powerful headlights or unadjusted lights are more or less trying to all who have to drive at night. Some of us, however, are actually more sensitive to headlight glare than others. It is not mere imagination nor fussiness. To the best of our present scientific knowledge an individual's sensitivity to glare depends on the ability of a substance known as visual purple, which is bleached by strong light, to regenerate quickly in the rod cells of the retina or light sensitive film in the back of the eye. When regeneration of the visual purple is slow the momentary blindness that every one experiences immediately after brilliant light has shined into the eyes continues for longer periods, from seconds to hours or days, depending on the circumstances.

When such capacity to regenerate visual purple is markedly diminished, the individual himself, or at any rate his friends or other observers, recognize that he has night-blindness, hemeralopia, which really means day-blindness, but by characteristic medical confusion has replaced the term nyctalopia, which really means what we're talking about—you pay your money and takes your choice of terms, only please remember it means inability to see well in dusk, semidarkness, after sunset, following a flash or sudden glare in the eyes, against opposing traffic, in a dimly lighted room when you come in from bright daylight. By means of a simple instrument (biophotometer) a precise measurement of the time it takes to regenerate the visual purple or of the night-blindness may be made—the subject indicates how many points of dim light he perceives in a totally dark space—and this is regarded as a fair indication of the subject's vitamin A reserve or deficiency, for vitamin A is essential for regeneration of the visual purple; the retina is normally rich in vitamin A.

Again I suggest to any one who is excessively dazzled or blinded by glare or who suffers from any degree of night-blindness that a fair test of the value of vitamin A would be to take one hundred thousand (100,000) U. S. P. units of natural vitamin A (not carotene, which is only provitamin A and must be changed into vitamin A in metabolism) daily for a week, and after that one capsule (25,000 units) a day for several months, especially if improvement is experienced in the first week or so. Soft capsules, each containing 25,000 units of natural vitamin A concentrate, are easy for adults or children to take.

In some instances of hypersensitivity to glare or troublesome night-blindness marked relief may be obtained from much smaller amounts of vitamin A. However, experience has shown that in many cases the optimal quantity I have suggested is necessary, and over a period of at least a week, to produce a definite result.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Wanted: Degree of D. P. M.

At your suggestion took our four year old son to Dr. who said he was too young for diathermy.

All members of the legislature were given the title "Senator" it would go a long way in elevating the capacity of the lower house. If that were supplemented by reducing the size of its membership, and inaugurating the four year term, the assembly might reach the stature of the state senate.

But Dr. supplemented his diet with vitamins and we believe this explains the boy's increased resistance to cri and his generally increased vigor and sturdiness. We need more health doctors. (Mrs. F. P.)

Answer—Having waited wistfully for twenty-five years for some educational institution to make a step in that direction by establishing a course leading to the degree of Doctor of Preventive Medicine, I despaired recently and just assumed the degree myself on the ground of my years of practice of preventive medicine. Sounds good, I think; Wm. Brady, M.D., D.P.M., F.A.M.A., or what would you suggest. Seriously, the country needs more health doctors, doctors who practice private preventive medicine exclusively, but the public has a lot to learn yet before such a doctor can hope to live. Millions of wisecracks still harbor a quaint notion of doctoring—no pills, no prickle, no pummel, no pay.

Crying and making myself miserable thinking I can't help my six weeks old baby. His eyes do not look right. When he looks to the left his right eye goes to the nose, and vice versa. An eye doctor told me to wait until he is a year old. (Mrs. D. R.)

Answer—All babies look a bit cross-eyed in the early weeks. A baby cannot focus his eyes until he is three months old, so dry your tears and do as the eye doctor advised. Send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for copy of the Brady Better Bigger Baby Book, which helps amateur mothers and even experienced ones over many difficulties in raising the baby.

Legislature Will Get New Old Age Pension Bill Soon

Little Change Is Expected To Be Made in State Law

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—An administration bill on old age pensions will appear in the state legislature soon. Republican floor leaders in command of the administration majorities in both houses have revealed.

There will be some "change" in the present old-age assistance law, it was reported, but the law will remain substantially what it is now.

It was considered likely that the Republican administration would obtain passage of the "lien bill," which would remove the present requirement that recipients of old age assistance must accept a lien on their property, and that the average monthly benefits would be increased slightly.

Republicans emphasize that the amounts demanded by the various pension lobbyists cannot be authorized without prohibitive taxes, because of the sharp sag in the receipts from the present taxes with its resultant difficulties in balancing the state's general operating budget.

Many Proposals
Scores of pension proposals have been introduced by members of all parties since the legislative session began early in January. Most of them have been routed to the administration-controlled joint finance committee, which still holds them. Republican leaders have explained that the administration will take the "desirable" features from some of them and incorporate them into what will be the administration-sponsored pension bill later in the session.

It appeared today that that pension measure may appear simultaneously with, or shortly after, the revenue bill, which is expected to be submitted early next week after final details have been ironed out at conferences between Governor Hall and the Republican legislative majority.

Pension lobbying, meanwhile, has substantially decreased in pressure. While numerous old age pension groups sent delegations to the capitol earlier—hundreds thronged in at the hearing on the $80 at 60 bill—pressure from the pension leagues has subsided in the months since. Legislators report. Lawmakers "fan mail" however, still contains a heavy sprinkling of letters from aged constituents who want action on a pension program.

Pegler Thinks Bolos Would Be Just the Same in America

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A communist who deplores the ignorance of those who see only external differences between his "ism" and the axis disease writes, in surprisingly gentle vein, to assure me that in Russia political dictatorship is a purely transitional measure which this country, with its long experience of democracy and parliamentary institutions, would be spared entirely. He adds a belief that I have been outrageously alienated by the methods and fanaticism of communism, as though the methods and fanaticism were only slight irritations, when the fact is that they include lying and suppression of truth and opinion, the wholesale slaughter and deportation of dissenters and, up to date in this country, the most vicious abuse by aliens and Americans under alien inspiration of Americans who resist these methods and that fanaticism.

It seems nice to be assured that in this country gentle methods would be used to dispossess Americans of their homes and farms and corner stores, to place political appointees in charge of all the factories and seize all the properties of religious and patriotic groups if communism inevitably must be.

But there is room for misgiving where he fails to explain by what magic the methods and fanaticism will be moderated to achieve these ends when the Americans go into the street to fight. For I think it must be anticipated that the Americans will not accept these slight adjustments in a docile spirit, being so long accustomed to private ownership of great or modest possessions and certain other institutions, and having no reason to repose confidence in a system which, in one great effort, has always enforced democracy with the machine gun and the secret police.

Probably Would Be Considerable Resistance
I am compelled to assume that there would be considerable resistance and that then, under the excuse of miscalculation and unforeseen necessity, the communist minority would suspend the promise of no dictatorship and treat the Americans rough. This would happen immediately, and if the communists won the result would be the abolition of the American democracy and its parliamentary institutions for an indefinite period, which, in this country, would be much longer than the 22 years to date, with the end not yet in sight, which Russia has spent under the terror.

My correspondent submits that the dictatorship in Russia was necessitated by the fact that the people had spent their past under the tyranny of the czars, and this argument, a familiar one, always moves me to inquire why a people so dumb and bovine, so long accustomed to oppression, needed more of the same by way of schooling for freedom.

No czar or czars ever shed as much blood inside Russia in an equal time as the bolsheviks in their transitional period, and all the riots and border wars together which have marked the progress of the United States under the republic, including the Civil war, cost fewer lives than this long and bloody schooling of the docile Russian for a freedom which is still withheld by one man.

Communist Methods Viewed With Distrust
If the ignorant, spiritless Russian required such coercion it must be

Schedule Hearing on 3rd Street Paving Cost

The final determination of assessments against property owners for the paving of Third street from State to Story street will be made at 7:30 Wednesday evening, according to Carl J. Becher, city clerk. No objections were made at a public hearing conducted by the board of public works Tuesday. Simpson and Parker Construction company, Appleton, was awarded the contract for the paving.

Hearing Scheduled on Prices for Water Main

Objections to assessments for water mains on three streets will be heard at a meeting of the city council at 7:30 Wednesday evening in city hall. The board of public work has set the rate at 60 cents per foot on the following streets: N. Union street from Parkway boulevard to Alice street; on E. Nicholas street from Drew street to Union street; and on N. Harriman street from Parkway boulevard to the city limits.

savagely in Russia as in Germany and Italy.

Naturally, Americans are outrageously alienated by the methods and fanaticism of the communists and so by communism itself. Those methods and fanaticism are communism and Hitlerism and fascism, too.

Frequent Nosebleed May be Symptom of Serious Disease

Madison — "Frequent nosebleed may be a symptom of disease," the state medical society said in its health bulletin today.

"Bleeding from the nose is not in itself a disease, but rather a symptom of disease; it may be the warning sign for the onset of a serious disorder, such as a change in the blood, or even a tumor of the adrenal glands which are situated above the kidneys. On the other hand, it may merely be due to increased mental or physical excitement or any other condition that suddenly raises the blood pressure. In most cases the amount of blood lost is small, but if the person has repeated hemorrhages the amount lost may be sufficient to cause anemia and to demand special treatment for restoring the blood.

"There are many superstitions about stopping nosebleeds, such as dropping a key down the back, pressing on the hard palate, and similar performances. However, no results may be obtained from such measures, except that they serve to distract the attention of the person whose nose is bleeding and keep him from being too much frightened during the short interval that usually elapses before the bleeding stops.

"Of course, any blow on the nose or any bruise which breaks a blood vessel will result in bleeding. There are also cases in which tumors within the blood vessels cause hemorrhage. In ordinary cases of nosebleed, if the person is at once placed in a horizontal position so that the blood pressure is lowered, and if he is kept cool, he tends to recover, since in most instances the bleeding will stop promptly.

"In more serious cases, however, physicians use measures which have a greater degree of certainty, such measures including packing of the nose with sterilized gauze, direct inspection with pinching of the bleeding vessel, cauterization with some substance like silver nitrate or chromic acid, and the use of various solutions which temporarily constrict the blood vessels, giving the blood opportunity to clot.

"When nosebleeds occur frequently, the advice of a physician should George McElroy is chairman and will be assisted by more than forty workers. The Rev. Alfred Hietpas, assistant pastor at Holy Name church, will be the principal speaker at the dinner. W. H. Individuals over 18 must join the club separately if they wish to become members. Outsiders will be assessed $4 per year. Among the privileges the club offers to its members will be the swimming pool with full time supervision. The pool will open about June 10 and is now being painted and put in readiness. A new diving board will also be erected before the opening. Donations in the village totalled $30 for the county unit association for Wisconsin's disabled. A check for the amount was forwarded to Mrs. H. W. Miller, Appleton, last week by J. T. Doerflinger, chairman of the local committee.

Waupaca Pupils Present Festival

High School Band Concert Precedes May Day Program

Waupaca—The first May day festival presented by pupils of Waupaca's elementary schools for many years, was held Monday afternoon. It had been postponed from Friday because of heavy showers at the beginning of the band concert that preceded the festival performance. Prof. Ernest Weber directed the high school band concert which opened the festival at 2:45 on the lawn of the high school. At the close of the concert the queen and her court entered, dressed in organ-dress and carrying garlands of flowers. Betty Lund, sixth grade student, was queen of the May. She was attended by Mary Ellen Gmeiner and Dorothy Groholski, also sixth grade students, and was immediately crowned queen by Kenneth Pederson, a fifth grader in full dress satin suit. The maids followed this by a song, "Crowning the May Queen." Arthur Scheller, sixth grade pupil read the story of the festival which took the audience on an imaginary journey around the world where the dances and folk songs of the several countries visited were depicted by the children of the elementary grades. The journey began after the queen and her maids sang "Our Trip." The first stop was among the Indians, represented by song and dance in costume by pupils of Miss Jeanette Houseman's first graders. The second stop was in Japan with Mrs. Ellen Johnson's third graders; Russia was represented by fifth and sixth grade students of Miss Mary Hart; songs and dances of Spain, pupils of Miss Mary Aiken's fifth grade; Germany, first grade pupils of Miss Pearl Chamberlain, Holland Miss Marion Sill's fourth grade; Sweden, second and third grade pupils of Miss Marjorie Lea Moberg; Norway and Denmark, kindergartners, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Rohloff; England, the songs and Maypole dance by pupils of Miss Isabel Hall; Ireland, pupils of Miss Helen Gilchrist; Holland, Miss Ruby Merbs second grade class; Negroes, third graders of Miss Lenore Mjelde. By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood — The Boulevard gossip is whispering a particularly nasty story about a certain famous lady who is more renowned for the beauty of her face than the sweetness of her disposition. According to the rumor, she took offense when a party of tourists parked in front of her home and sailed out into the roadway to "give them a piece of her mind."

Fidler — I don't believe it. Granting that the gal in question is very prone to give people a piece of her mind, I think that good business judgment, which she unquestionably has, would have restrained her from a gesture certain to hurt her with her fans. But there's a good deal of point in the case, nevertheless — and the point is this: such stories are never told about stars who haven't fully qualified for them.

The Hollywood gossip barrage — a strange mixture of fact and malicious fiction — is usually directed by justice. The stories told about screen stars, whether true or false, almost invariably reflect their actual characters and fit them like so many gloves. You hear vicious stories about vicious people; nice stories about those who make it a habit to be nice.

It often occurs to me, when I hear some dyed-in-the-wool hell-cat ranting about the lies circulated about her that she would be smarter, if instead of spending so much time objecting to gossip, she would spend more time and effort in creating, by graceful actions, the kind of a reputation that would call for a flattering type of gossip.

Some practical gagster created pandemonium yesterday on the set where Metro's "The Women" is being filmed by shrieking in well-stimulated terror: "A mouse — there's a mouse!" There were blood-curdling screams from eighty-five feminine throats and a wild rush for chairs, tables, and other points of "safety." And then, with Director George Cukor bellowing for sanity, the same voice cut in again, this time with a sardonic note. "Is there a cat in the house?" "The Women" sheepishly resumed their places and work went on.

I've been getting awed reports from eye-witnesses about Errol Flynn's magnificent gesture in behalf of a bus load of tourists who were touring his studio. Seems the Stars of the screen have been steadily turning toward the soil, buying ranches and other places near the screen capital. Here we find Eleanor Powell shaping her flower beds and busy planting seeds. Her perennials are her pride.

Warner Brothers have a deal with a local tourist agency which permits busses to drive along the studio streets — so long as the tourists stay put in the busses. Errol realizing that the passengers seldom see hide or hair or a star by that procedure, felt upset about it and took matters into his own capable hands. Yesterday, he solemnly stopped one of the busses, asked the driver to take him to the back lot and, en route, took over the loud speaker and pointed out all spots of interest.

Clintonville Rotary Hears Report on Meet

Clintonville — A report on the annual convention of the 143rd District of Rotary International held at Sturgeon Bay Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 21 to 23, was given by Max Sieg at the noon luncheon of the local club Wednesday at Hotel Marson. Mr. Sieg commented on the addresses given by the main speakers, Channing Pollack, well known playwright, and Dr. Preston Bradley of Chicago. Brief reports on the convention were also given by the club president, John Winkler; D. J. Rohrer, president-elect, and Edward Olson.

The weekly meeting of the local Rotary club was postponed from Monday to Wednesday noon because of the district convocation. About fourteen members from Clintonville and their wives attended.

Members of the S. O. E. club and invited guests will be entertained

The WORLD OF STAMPS

Chancellor Hitler, who is fond of making surprise moves, raised philatelic eyebrows recently by permitting his picture to appear on a second German stamp within a month. Never until this last stamp was released on April 28 has he allowed a likeness of himself to appear on any but the annual birthday stamps. This stamp appeared on the day he made his return to President Roosevelt, eight days after his most recent birthday.

The paper is watermarked with swastikas; the picture reproduced by the photogravure process. Dr. Fuehrer's official photographer, Prof. Heinrich Hoffman, took the photo, allegedly while Herr Hitler was making his Reichstag speech, January 30.

The stamp—showing a grim, calm Hitler gazing heavenward, is dark brown in the 6 pf. plus 19 pf. value. The extra 19 pf. is supposed to go into his "national culture" fund.

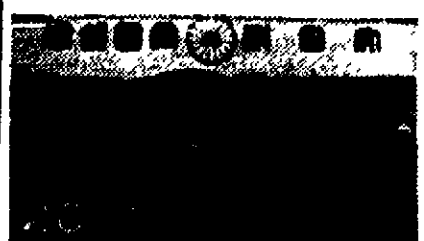

Across the Atlantic Four days before the Pan-American Airways Company began its Trans-Atlantic mail and passenger service on May 20th, the Post Office Department issued a new blue 30-cent airmail stamp for the occasion. The stamp is similar in design to the five-cent airmail stamp issued in 1928—but with two significant changes. First, the word Trans-Atlantic appears over the winged globe. And near the bottom curlicues have been replaced by scenes showing ships at sea. Perforation is the same, 11.

The flying ships carrying the at a card party Friday afternoon at the Masonic hall. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell entertained a large group of relatives and friends Monday evening at their home on route 3, the occasion being their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. Contests, group singing and card games provided amusement, after which a late lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell have lived on their present farm in the town of Larabee since their marriage 35 years ago. They have two daughters, Mrs. Arnold Hoffman, Clintonville, and Mrs. Arthur Lohr, Fella, and six grandchildren.

'Man in Iron Lung' Won't be Dissappointed If There Is No Physical Cure at Shrine

One of the strangest pilgrimages ever made to the world-famous shrine at Lourdes, France, left New York May 17. It was that of Fred Snite, Jr., 28-year-old Chicagoan who was stricken with infantile paralysis three years ago and ever since has lain in an iron lung. What Lourdes is and what he could hope to find there during his nine-day stay are told in the following story.

New York—A riverside groto to at Lourdes, France, has become one of the most cherished of Catholic shrines since a young shepherdess 81 years ago told of visions in which the Virgin Mary came to her there.

Millions have visited the groto and its miraculous spring for physical and spiritual healing. Many who came helplessly lame have walked away, reporting themselves cured and leaving behind as votive offerings the crutches which line the wall of the groto.

It is to that shrine that Fred Snite, 28-year-old Chicagoan who has breathed with an iron lung since infantile paralysis struck him three years ago, has gone.

More than three quarters of a century ago Bernadette Soubirous, a 14-year-old peasant girl, told skeptical clergy of her visions at the groto on the banks of the Gave de Pau in the Pyrenees.

She had seen, she said, a beautiful lady "lovelier than I have ever seen," in a hollow of the rocks. She Increasing pilgrimages—they now average an estimated 600,000 a year—made the building inadequate, and the Church of the Rosary was built directly above the spring.

In the groto itself visitors now see Bernadette's vision—depicted by a great statue of the Virgin in a hollow of the rock to the right of the spring.

Water Piped In

The spring has been walled off and the water is piped into basins below. Pilgrims bathe there or drink the water from taps in the walls. Chemists have reported it has no chemical properties to account for the cures. In fact, the remarkable coldness of the water makes its application dangerous for certain ailments.

But the Bureau of Medical Authentication of the groto reports 4,000 cures, partial or complete, were effected in the first 50 years of the shrine. Cures have been claimed for nervous diseases, lameness, tuberculosis, tumors, sores, cancers, deafness, and blindness.

Snite hopes to find "spiritual and mental" betterment but says he will not be too disappointed if there is no physical improvement.

He adds:

"I will make an earnest plea to Him and to the Blessed Mother to help me, knowing that He can cure me if He should so desire. But if it is not His will, and He surely knows best, then it is not mine."

Three Motorists Are Assessed for Reckless Driving

Eau Claire Man Leaves Fine Unpaid Since 1937, Costs Climb to $47

Five motorists appeared in municipal court of Judge Thomas H. Ryan yesterday afternoon and this morning on charges of traffic law violations. A sixth paid a fine incurred in 1937.

Two of the motorists pleaded guilty of reckless driving and were fined $10 and costs each with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp. They are Lavern Zimmer, route 1, Hortonville, who was arrested for traveling 50 miles an hour in the city of Appleton, and Louis Tiesling, 311 W. Franklin street, who was arrested by county police at Greenville.

Oliver E. Schick, Neenah, this morning was permitted to enter a plea of nolo contendere to a charge of reckless driving and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp. County police made the arrest May 14.

Edward Eisch, route 1, Appleton, yesterday afternoon pleaded guilty of failing to carry flares on his truck, failing to have a tail light and failing to have clearance lights. He was fined $2 and costs with an alternative of 5 days on each count. Eisch said he was unable to raise the amount of the fines and was committed for 15 days.

William J. Roland, Eau Claire, found that it is costly to neglect his business, especially when it concerns municipal court in Outagamie county. Roland was arrested for jumping an arterial in September, 1937. He told the arresting officer to enter a plea of guilty for him and that he would send money for the fine. The assessment was $5, but officers had to journey to Eau Claire to collect the fine after Roland failed to heed letters, and the costs in the case amounted to $47.00. Roland paid the entire amount yesterday.

Andrew Reinke, route 3, Appleton, yesterday pleaded guilty of failing to have a tail light on his machine and of failure to have a driver's license. He was fined $3 and costs on each count and the fine on the latter was remitted upon payment of costs.

Rain Clouds Fail To Dump Contents

Unsettled Conditions to Prevail Tonight And Friday

Grey, bulky clouds gave promise of a needed rainfall in Appleton and vicinity today but about all they had done up to early this afternoon was to obscure the sun and keep temperatures in a cool range. The weather man has been predicting showers the last few days but his forecasts have failed to materialize so today he just said "unsettled tonight and Friday" and let go at that.

Things warmed up a bit yesterday but spring suffered a relapse to-day and the mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building had a hard time wriggling up to 69 degrees early this afternoon. Maximum and minimum temperatures for the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning were 74 degrees at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 52 degrees at 12 o'clock last night, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Highest and lowest temperatures in the nation yesterday were at Sioux City, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., with 88 degrees and Yellowstone with 34 degrees, according to the Associated Press.

Judge F. A. Geiger Resigns Because Of Long Illness

States senator, might be named to succeed him. Duffy, defeated for reelection last fall, was in Washington recently to confer with Attorney General Murphy.

During his long tenure, Judge Geiger demanded that a high degree of dignity be maintained in his court at all times. He tolerated no dramatic effects. He made it a rule not to be quoted on any subject. He declined to be photographed.

Dispute in 1937
The jurist won nationwide attention in 1937 when he dismissed a federal grand jury which had been investigating government charges that three major automobile manufacturing firms were violating the anti-trust laws in automobile financing. He ruled that negotiations of government prosecutors and counsel for the firms for a consent decree while the grand jury was in session were "highly improper."

As a result of this, Homer S. Cummings, then attorney general, filed with the house judiciary committee a complaint charging Judge Geiger with "unwarranted obstruction of justice" and "unwarranted interference with the justice department and the grand jury." The house subsequently exonerated the judge.

In a test case 15 years ago, Judge Geiger held that aliens who had claimed exemption during the World war on the ground they were aliens had not incapacitated themselves for citizenship.

Bill Creating New Board of Review Backed in Senate create an administrative court, they contended if the board was successful, the court could be established later.

Sees Public Savings
Duel declared the bill would result in "fair adjudication" by state boards because of a separation of judicial from administrative and investigative powers. White predicted "more orderly and efficient hearings with savings to the public in general."

Senators Kresky (P), Green Bay, and Risser (P), Madison, called the measure "purely political, a God-send to broken-down Republican politicians needing jobs." They denied that lawyers of Wisconsin favored the bill, pointing to their absence when it was heard by the judiciary committee.

Kresky asserted the board could not be given judicial powers because the legislature was prohibited from conferring such powers. He called the board "unnecessary," since appeals could be taken to the circuit and supreme courts afterward.

Action on the board of review bill followed a successful move by Democrats and Progressives to delay a vote on another Republican bill replacing the three-man public service commission with a single director.

Alan Florin of Chicago last night was awarded the President's cup at the annual Brokaw hall banquet on the Lawrence college campus.

The award is made each spring to the outstanding freshman in the dormitory. Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of the college, was the principal speaker at the banquet, attended by about 100 students and faculty members.

The athletic cup, awarded for outstanding athletic ability, scholarship, and service went to Donald Fredrickson of Wausau. Richard Calkins, Racine, won the scholarship cup and James Sweet, Wausau, the forensic cup. The awards are all made to freshman students.

Edward Chambers, Fond du Lac junior, was toastmaster at the banquet. Besides Dr. Barrows, Dr. Charles Flory, professor of education, and Donald M. DuShane, associate professor of government, spoke.

A string trio from the Lawrence Conservatory of Music entertained.

$3,700 Is Awarded In Damage Action

Jury Reaches Verdict After Deliberating About 5 Hours

Damages of $3,700 were awarded Miss Jane Struck and her father, Orson Struck, 615 W. Fifth street, by a circuit court jury after it deliberated almost five hours last night.

They sued for $11,000 from Lloyd Vetter, 18 Bellaire court, Ralph Egan, 1106 E. North street, Robert Johnson, Chicago, and the Milwaukee Insurance company and the case opened Monday before Judge Edgar V. Werner. Miss Struck was injured Oct. 31, 1937 when the car in which she was riding, owned by Egan and driven by Vetter, went off Highway 141 near Stiles. Vetter it was alleged, went off the road when Johnson, who was driving ahead of the Egan car, made a left turn.

The jury found Vetter negligent as to lookout, speed and control. It found Johnson was not negligent. Miss Struck was awarded $1,200 for pain and suffering and $2,000 for permanent injuries. Her father was given $500 for medical costs for his daughter.

Influenza Cases in State High in April

Madison — The state board of health today listed last month as the healthiest April in Wisconsin's history based on reports of communicable diseases.

Influenza was the only one of the familiar "catching ailments" to show higher than average incidence. There were 440 cases compared with a six year April average of 180. Other diseases showed decreases. Physicians reported only one case of diphtheria and one of typhoid while smallpox was limited to five cases.

The First Hundred Years —

Indians Positively Did Not Invent Baseball

On June 12, America celebrates the centenary of baseball. To learn about baseball's First Hundred Years, Gardner Soule went to Cooperstown, N. Y., where the first game was played, and where baseball historical records are now kept, for material—much of it never before published. This is the first of his six stories.

BY GARDNER SOULE
AP Feature Service Sports Editor
COOPERSTOWN, N. Y. — A baseball diamond was laid out in a cow pasture here 100 years ago.

This was probably due to a mere flight of fancy, or to a spur-of-the-moment idea, on the part of a Cooperstown youth named Abner Doubleday.

Doubleday merely was trying to figure out some game that the village boys could play on the green-sward.

But from his flight of fancy there came baseball — the national game of 125,000,000 persons.

Scholars may argue about the exact origin of baseball. I have seen the game attributed to (1)

BASEBALL'S BEGINNING
WAS AWFULLY SLOW
Humanity is slow to embrace any new idea.

This quotation from De Witt's "Base Ball: Guide for 1858" shows that baseball, in its early days, had rough going indeed:

"The prejudice which existed against the game could now scarcely be imagined. The favor with which it was regarded may be judged from the observation used by an accidental witness of a game who, after looking on a while, with unfeigned astonishment exclaimed, 'I can't see what fun such great, big men can find in hitting a little ball with a big stick and then running away like mad, and kicking at a sand bag.'" various herds of monkeys in Africa; (2) to the Chaldean empire; (3) to the American Indian; and (4) English cricket players.

But Abner Doubleday, in 1839, at Cooperstown, laid out the diamond (he called it a square), established the distance of 90 feet between bases (a dimension that remains today), and organized sides (teams) to play each other.

A commission, appointed in 1907 to determine the original scene of baseball, decided that Cooperstown was it.

The first ball was home-made, a rubber, leather-covered ball wound with yarn. It was lopsided and about as lively as a hunk of putty.

The first bats were improvised from rake handles, broomsticks, and wagon tongues.

Doubleday experimented with teams of nine men and of eleven men. The first teams played any number of hands (innings) until one side scored 21 runs (runs), thereby winning the game.

The batter was out if a fielder caught his batted ball on a "fair bound," the first bounce. There were no "called" strikes or balls, and the batter could linger at the plate all day until he made up his mind to hit.

The pitcher stood 45 feet away from the dish and tossed the ball underhand.

By 1842, baseball had gotten down to New York City.

There, in the spring of 1845, Alexander Cartwright organized the first baseball team that was to stick together for any length of time.

Cartwright recruited his men in New York, and led them across the ferry into New Jersey, where they prospectored for a suitable ground.

The boys selected the Elysian fields. Their team became the Knickerbockers.

The second baseball team in America was the New York Gotham club, organized in 1852. Since baseball soon was on its way to becoming a popular winter sport, this team played the Brooklyn Atlantics three games on ice skates in 1853-54.

The first uniforms, adopted April 24, 1849, consisted of blue woolen pants, white flannel shirts and straw hats.

Baseball was strictly a "gentleman's pastime" at the start. Professionalism was not to appear until 1868.

"Called" strikes were introduced in 1858. They were included in the

Kimberly Preps
For Invasion of Chute Ball ParkOld Rivals Will Clash
Sunday in Fox River Valley League

KIMBERLY — The center of attraction in the Fox Valley Baseball league will be at Little Chute Sunday afternoon when Butch Thein's Papermakers cross bats with the Hollanders. The Kimberly squad has a perfect record in three starts and is leading the loop with Kaukauna. On the other hand, the Chuters still are without a win and nothing would give the A.A. squad more pleasure than to cop from the Papermakers. Thein has a powerful aggregation of home talent players who can explode hits when they are needed. Kimberly fans are backing up Manager Thein's hustling team. It is expected that next Sunday over half of the large grandstand at Little Chute will be filled with Kimberly fans whooping it up for the Papermakers.

Kimberly has seven rookies who are showing in great style. Next Sunday, Drek Van Dyke, a nephew to Butch, will join the club and will play in the infield. Van Dyke is rated one of the greatest athletes ever turned out of Kimberly high school. He graduates next week.

The Little Chute squad was defeated by Neenah last Sunday in a close game, 4 to 3. The Chuters will probably start J. Caul who showed on the mound with the Papermakers last year. He has a lot of speed and a beautiful knuckle ball which may give the Papermakers trouble.

Artie Hoffkins, ace hurler for Kimberly, may start in Sunday's contest or Vander Zanden, a rookie, who shared the pitching duties with Hoffkins last Sunday.

Wednesday evening, May 31, the Papermakers will have a booster game when Menasha comes to town. The game was scheduled for Tuesday but postponed due to Memorial services in the village. The community band will be out for the game.

CHUTERS PRIMED
Little Chute — After taking three straight on the chin A.A. baseball team is determined to break its losing streak at the expense of the Kimberly Papermakers here Sunday afternoon.

Defensively, the locals are the equal of any team in the league but haven't been clicking at the plate. At first base Moose Van Dyke can cover the initial sack with the best in the league. At second, Freddy Hammen, a rookie, is coming along fine. With Bonkers at short and Baker Verstegen at third, the Chuters have an experienced infield.

Snooky Van Dyke, who has returned home from Stevens Point Teachers, is expected to don the big mitt in place of Jocko Strick who still is on the shelf with a split finger. Johnny Call, the new mound artist, will toe the mound.

In the outfield, a former Papermaker, Cashman, now residing in the village and eligible to play here, will cavort in right, with Lamers, Red Boots or Wildenberg in center and left.

The game will be a booster affair with the local band out to top the contest. The game is called for 2:15.

Armstrong Will Show New Style

Negro Is Heavy Favorite To Beat British Wellterweight King

London — Having conquered three divisions with an attack that resembled a demented windmill, Henry Armstrong will defend his welterweight title against Liverpool's Ernie Roderick tonight in the stand-up style of the English sporting prints.

The 1400 or so who will congregate in Harringay arena will get a surprise. They have been hearing about Hank as a swarming, relentless fighter. Tonight they'll see a boxer.

Whatever style he employs, Henry is a 1 to 2 shot to drub the British welterweight king and it is 2 to 5 he will knock out Roderick well within the 15-round limit.

Henry's switch in style is necessitated by two considerations. One is the weakened condition of his left hand, the index finger of which he smashed against Davey Day's skull in his last American fight. The other is the English rule, which disqualifies a fighter on his first low or otherwise illegal blow.

Roderick is far from daunted by Henry's reputation. He is a big, courageous-looking citizen who learned to fight among the Irish element in Liverpool, never noted for their pacifism.

Ernie has won 59 out of his last 61 fights and has beaten the best of the British and continental lightweight and welterweights.

Reed Won't Oppose
Neenah Tennis Squad

Shawano — Coach Gilbert Muelbach, who has piloted the Shawano high tennis squad through an undefeated series of dual meets to the conference and state championships this season, is not so sure about Saturday's match with Neenah here. Chief reason is that Billy Reed, No. 1 singles player and state singles champ, will be absent because of the state track meet.

The Shawano representatives will number only five for the match and the order in which they will play still is undecided.

ANNOUNCE SHOOT

There will be a skeet and trap shoot on the Leonard range across from Butte des Morts Golf club Sunday afternoon, it has been announced. It is open to the public. The Fox Valley Skeet and Trap club is reported sponsoring the event.

Reds Score Ninth
Straight Victory

RUNS MILE IN 4 MINUTES, 32.6 SECONDS

William "Red" Schmidt, New London, proved those fast miles credited to him in recent dual track meets weren't even his fastest speeds when he ran the distance in 4 minutes, 32.6 seconds at Whiting field here yesterday afternoon in a practice grind. Schmidt ran against Roland Vogt, Appleton High school's best miler, and Johnny Foote, Seymour star, both of whom have been clocked in exceptionally good times. The race was a warmup for the state high school meet at Madison Saturday where Schmidt will run in Class B, Vogt in Class A and Foote in Class C. In the above picture, taken at the end of 220 yards, Schmidt has stepped in front to take a lead which increased under his apparent effortless pace. Vogt is running second, Foote is bringing up the rear. Vogt was clocked in 4 minutes, 36.7 seconds and Foote in 4 minutes, 45.8 seconds. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Truckers Worried Over Three Games in the Next Six Days

CLINTONVILLE — The Clintonville FWD Truckers baseball team has a busy weekend ahead with games scheduled for Friday night, Sunday afternoon and Tuesday afternoon. Their first encounter will be with the Green Bay Green Sox Friday in the first night game of the season. The second will be at Two Rivers Sunday afternoon and the third with Seymour on the Trucks' diamond Decoration day afternoon.

The Green Sox and the Trucks originally were scheduled for last Sunday but wet grounds prevented. The ceremonies which were supposed to inaugurate the home season for the Sox last Sunday will be carried over to Friday night. The mayor of Green Bay will pitch the first ball to the president of the Northern State league, B. J. Neumann.

Inasmuch as all games in the Northern State league were cancelled last week, the standings remain the same with the Green Sox and the Trucks tied for first place with two wins each. Both teams have defeated New London and for their other victory the Sox tripped Two Rivers while the Trucks took a close one from Manitowish.

Clintonville will be handicapped during the three games by lack of hurlers. With only two regular moundmen, Manager Len Goerlinger has been scouting around for some outside talent. Friday night John Tomlin will get the starting call and if need be Sid Felts can be asked to give relief for an inning or two. Sunday Goerlinger plans on starting Felts against the Cool City nine. Last year the Trucks knocked off Two Rivers for the league bunting in a playoff.

Tuesday when the Trucks meet Seymour, Goerlinger will need all his available talent. Seymour has a grudge against the Trucks since the Clintonville nine took a 10 to 1 decision last year to win the second half championship of the circuit.

So in order to save Felts or Tomlin for this game, Manager Goerlinger has been keeping Lefty Joe Petcka in trim and undoubtedly Joe will do some hurling either Friday or Sunday. There also is a chance that Petcka will get one of the starting assignments.

Softball League Is Planned at Kimberly

Kimberly — A meeting was held at the village last night to lay plans for a twilight softball league. Those attending were Ray Hamann, the Rev. Alfred Hietpas, Dud Courchane, Paul Van Dyke, Robert Busch, John Busch, and Elmer Vandenberg.

June 5 was set as the opening date for play with four teams participating. Teams will be organized at 4 o'clock next Monday afternoon with the following captains in charge: Hal Wentzel, Paul Van Dyke, Elmer Vandenberg and Robert Busch. Interested players can join the league by making application to one of the captains. Games are scheduled for Monday evenings and possibly on Wednesday evenings.

CARDS COP TWO

One Is Second Shutout
Of Season for Curt
Davis, Ex-Cub

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Paul Derringer shut out the New York Giants on five hits yesterday as the Cincinnati Reds slugged their way to their ninth consecutive victory, 6 to 0.

Starting with two runs on three hits in the first inning, the Reds punched disrespectfully at the offerings of Harry Gumbert, the Giants' No. 1 finger, until they brought about his removal by a three run-splurge in the fifth.

Lonnie Frey tripled, scored on Ival Goodman's double, and he in turn came in on Bucky McCormick's eighth homer of the season. The Reds got two more hits and filled the bases later in this frame without further scoring.

Their final run came in the eighth off Dick Coffman, who had followed Jim Lynn to the mound. Bill Werber doubled and two sacrifices brought him home.

It was the fifth victory for Derringer against one setback.

"Now, therefore, I, Edwin A. To that purpose, I do hereby proclaim Saturday, May 27, to be poppy day in the city of Neenah."

Kolakowski Tops Falcon Batters With 500 Average

Team Hits at .266 Clip in First Three Fox Valley Games

Menasha — F. Kolakowski, first baseman of the Polish Falcons, ball club is leading the team in hitting with a neat 500 average. The Falcons player has collected six hits in 12 attempts but has scored only one run. The entire Falcon team is batting at a .266 average.

The Falcons will dedicate the new Menasha baseball stadium, next Sunday with a game with their old rivals, the Neenah Merchants. The Merchants have scored 15 runs and have collected 20 hits in 92 times at bat for a .217 average. The Falcons have collected 29 hits in 109 attempts but have scored only 14 runs. Both teams have won a single game and have lost two.

Badger Nadolny is the second high hitter on the team with a .333 average in the lead-off spot. Not only is Nadolny a good hitter but he is fast and has a good eye, making him an effective lead-off man. He leads the team in scoring with three runs.

Ben Paulowski tops the three Paulowski's on the Falcons team with a .301 average while Syl and Ed are hitting .230. Syl Omachinski, another veteran of the Falcon team, is the fourth man with an average of .300 or better, just getting under the wire with three hits in 10 attempts for .300.

Bands Will Play
The dedication ceremonies are scheduled to start at 1:30 Sunday afternoon while the ball game will get under way shortly at 2:15. Bands of Menasha and St. Mary High schools will participate and the flag and the championship pennant will be raised.

The Neenah Merchants would like nothing better than to spoil the dedication for the Falcons. A victory over the Little Chute team last week has installed new vigor in the Neenah nine.

While the Falcons have been hitting at a .266 clip, opponents have averaged .213 on 20 hits in 94 attempts. Opponents have scored 14 runs, just as many as the Falcons but have won two ballgames.

The Falcon batting averages follow:

About 125 women attended the meeting at which Mrs. Harrison Smith, Menasha, presented a lecture-demonstration on "Meals for Summer Days." The cooking expert emphasized the broiled dinner as the most easily prepared meal of hot foods for summer, and she suggested serving combinations of cold and hot foods for most occasions. The lecture was sponsored by the Neenah school of vocational and adult education.

Maladjusted Pupils Must be Understood, Mental Expert Says

Neenah — Dr. Katherine W. Taylor, Madison, of the state department of mental hygiene, stressed the need for understanding maladjusted pupils in a talk at the annual banquet of the Neenah Teachers association Wednesday evening at the Valley Inn. Seventy-two teachers attended the banquet.

Dr. Taylor explained the work being done in her department on personal adjustments and problems. The psychologist said that "The stigma placed upon teachers by a community, preventing instructors to live like other human beings, curtails the cultivation of the type of personality in themselves which they wish the pupils to attain."

Following the talk and banquet, committee reports were read, and it was decided to postpone election of officers until the first meeting in September. A musical program was furnished by Lester Loehrke who played the violin with Miss Lillian Clark at the piano. Community singing also was held.

Pair Should Have Reached 6-Club Level

"The bidding:

North East South West

Pass 1 diamond Pass 2 clubs

Pass 3 clubs 3 spades 4 diamonds

Pass Pass Pass

I was West and, after the three spade bid, did not think I had enough honor to pick strength to warrant a four spade cue bid. I did not like to mention the hearts at the four level, hence my four diamond bid which I thought would show spades and not too many spade losers. I also wished to show diamond support before forcing my partner and felt that my bid over the three spade bid was fairly strong and that East could have raised the diamonds or clubs, in which event I should have bid six diamonds. However, East felt there were too many losing spades and, knowing nothing of the hearts, was content with the four diamond bid. Should I have bid five diamonds, four spades or should my partner have raised the clubs?"

"Mrs. F. J. F. Philadelphia"

The blame must be divided in this case, but I am afraid that at least 80 per cent of it must be placed with West. The four diamond bid was definitely not good. I grant that West's honor trick holding was not terrific—a mere two and one-half-plus—but the distribution of her hand and the fact that she had made only a simple two club take-out at her first opportunity justified this cue bid at the crucial point. I must stress the fact that a cue bid, which is made after a player has already limited his holding by failing to make a jump take-out or jump raise, does not require as much strength as if made under other conditions. The club raise by East, on top of the opening diamond bid, assured West of an excellent "fit" and it was inconceivable that a four spade cue bid could encourage East past a safe level. A grand slam was almost impossible to reach on these combined holdings, and indeed it is questionable whether it should be bid, since a bad diamond break might well defeat it. I suggest the following as the correct East-West bidding:

North East South West

Pass 1 diamond Pass 2 clubs

Pass 3 clubs 3 spades 4 spades

Pass 6 clubs Pass Pass

In order to keep the East-West bidding straight I have accepted South's erratic bidding, passing at the one level and entering the auction at the three level.)

call attention to the fact that, although most combined hands holding one matching four card suit play better with that suit as trump than with another trump suit divided 5-4, that in this particular case clubs and not diamonds should be the correct final contract. Although the diamond jack would not have fallen, East's losing diamond could easily have been discarded on West's hearts and eventually a diamond could have been ruffed in the East hand.

The 20 per cent blame put on the East player results from his having "hung" one short of game with a well fitting hand. He should have bid five clubs.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If there is anybody in your family who cannot hold a job for long, be sure to have him read about Felix, and then see what the Harvard Bureau of Vocational Guidance found to be the cause of such labor turnover.

CASE N-146: Felix W., aged 53, is an unemployed Tuba player.

"He has been unemployed almost continuously for the past 11 years," his daughter told me. She is a snappy college girl in one of my evening classes at the university.

"A few years ago, however, he did get a job in a WPA orchestra. It paid him about $100 per month. We were so happy about it. But after a few months he quit.

"And do you know why, Dr. Crane," she asked with distillated sarcasm in her voice. "Well, he got thinking about the director versus himself. My father directed a band in the old country, and he got so irate to think he was playing the Tuba while the other fellow was the director, that he just up and quit his job.

"That orchestra is still going, but my father sits at home, babied by my mother living in the past when he was an orchestra leader in the old country, while I have to support the family on my salary as a stenographer.

"It irritates me very much. I am growing so nauseated by my father's kindergarten vanity and lack of common sense, that I simply can't stand the sight of him any longer. Dr. Crane, why will grown men be so stupid?"

DIAGNOSIS:

This is an excellent case today, for it perfectly illustrates similar findings by the Bureau of Vocational Guidance at Harvard University in an analysis of the causes of discharge in 4,000 employees who had been fired.

Of those 4,000 workers, 2,830 or 65.8 per cent lost their jobs because of lack of social understanding, or applied psychology, we might properly call it. The other 1,170 per cent were fired because of incompetence and lack of skill or technical ability.

Just think of it. Nearly two-thirds of the men and women lost their jobs because they couldn't get along with people. They were kinder, gentler, and excessively vain, as was true of Felix.

They lacked common sense. They were untruthful and dishonest. They were trouble makers for many reasons.

With all the fan fare that has been given to our employer-employee relationships and the strikes and lockouts occurring in this country, we have all too often ignored the psychological causes of labor troubles.

This country is still so materialistic in its thinking and so money-minded, that it sinks billions in cleaning up the slums and tenements, but ignores the psychological hangers of our population.

And all the beautiful rest rooms, drinking fountains and dramatic baseball teams sponsored by the company will not prevent dissension unless the petty psychological causes for quarrelling are removed. Man does not live by bread alone.

We cannot buy labor, tranquility even with high wages unless we also iron out the psychological difficulties and promote fair play. We have still too much Rule of Gold instead of Golden Rule. This applies to our legislative halls as well as to our factories and department stores.

How To Rate Your Boss

Not long ago I conducted a survey of the workers in dozens of different plants and offices, ranging from steel-mill worker to bank cashier, from office boy to office manager, and I asked these men and women what they liked about their immediate employer.

They were interviewed frankly, so they could speak with frankness. Then I reversed my query and inquired what they didn't like or admired about the boss. They told me things they wouldn't dare tell to the boss.

Send me a long, self-addressed envelope with fee postage thereon if you wish a free copy of this "TEST FOR EMPLOYERS." And send your boss a copy!

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a 3-cent stamped, addressed envelope for return letters, and readers' names are never published.

Day and dinner versions of a favorite dress is a practical fashion hint taken up by Virginia Bruce. The actress has her dinner dress of navy sheer, crisp with white piping copied into a daytime frock. Both models have loosely pleated skirts, tight-fitting bodices with flower-petal lapels in the pique. With the day-length frock, the actress wears a sailor of navy straw with bag and pumps, and white wrist-length pique gloves. For evening, Miss Bruce chooses a vari-colored flower turban with long veil in flesh pink, navy, elbow-length net gloves and navy slippers in an open-work lace design.

Children Should Learn to Like Old Friends of Family

BY ANGELO PATRI

Family friends are an institution that must, in time, be accepted by the group concerned. They may rub each other now and then, but that does not change the relationship. Frank criticism, loyal support, unselfish and understanding help are understood on both sides, expected and appreciated. The only really vexatious situation that is likely to rise, and to persist, is the children's unwillingness to accept the old family friends with the same feeling that their parents have. The friendships are a habit with the elders, but something quite outside the children's lives.

"Aunt" Ellen sees nothing questionable in her direct criticism of Charles's new way of combing his hair. She speaks her mind about it. "Land sakes, what are you doing with your hair? It looks a fright. As if somebody had scared you out of a year's growth. What made you do such a thing? Didn't the girls laugh at you?"

"Uncle" Tom chuckles at sight of Marie's bright nails. "See you're going away to college so long as we have such a good one right at home. He's better off at home where he can get home nights and we can keep an eye on him."

That's the finish where the boy is concerned. He is longing to get away from home and here is this old busybody keeping him home. He overlooks the fact that his father and mother were first to doubt the advisability of the out-of-town college. They wanted to keep him home and "Uncle" agreed. "Uncle" gets the full weight of the boy's displeasure. The family friend and the family heads understand each other's points of view and, of course, agree. That usually leaves the children on the dissenter's bench.

These affairs might be managed with greater tact. Parents need the support of their old friends, but unless they resign themselves to seeing their children and the old friends at swords' points, they must do a bit better in managing to keep the peace.

"No, no, I wouldn't advise his going away to college so long as we have such a good one right at home. He's better off at home where he can get home nights and we can keep an eye on him."

These affairs might be managed with greater tact. Parents need the support of their old friends, but unless they resign themselves to seeing their children and the old friends at swords' points, they must do a bit better in managing to keep the peace.

Why not hold these discussions in private, so the children do not hear them? The final decision may be opposite to the general trend of the talk, and the children are all stirred up for no purpose. And why quote "Uncle" and "Aunt" in the matter? When their opinion is against the children, quoting them is shaking a red flag in the bull's face. Let the decisions come directly from the heads of the family and that will spare the counselors.

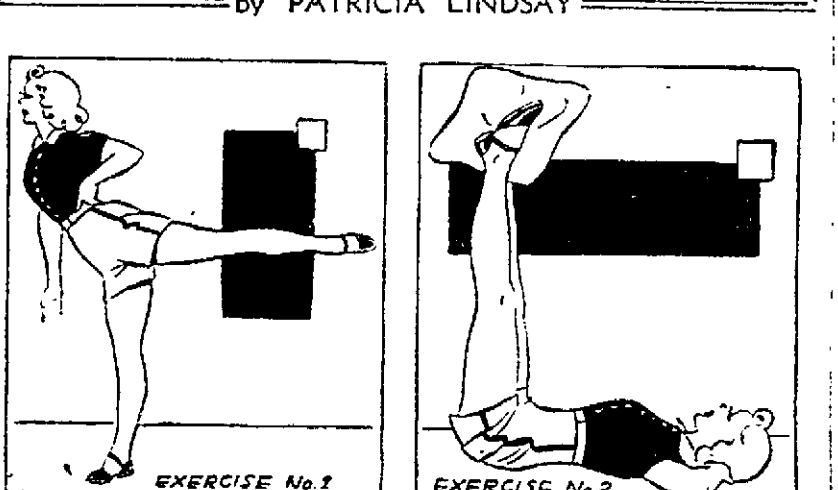

It is very pleasant, and often profitable in many ways, for the children to share the affection and loyalty of old family friends. If this is to be preserved for them the friends will have to do their share toward wooing the children, and the family their share in protecting the friends from unnecessary blame.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Exercise 1. Limbering. Exercise 2. Firming abdomen.

During May and June, women everywhere suddenly become figure-conscious. They think of bathing suits of going without girdles during hot weather, and instantly determine to slim! All my preaching during the winter months did little good, but the bathing suit will make them get busy every time! Sometimes I wish we were all nudists, then women would keep their health and figures up to par constantly!

But let me warn all of you that you must not begin to diet drastically or to diet without exercising. It stands to reason that if you suddenly drop off pounds through starving yourself, your muscles and contours are going to be flabby and unattractive. The only sane way to reduce is to taper your menus gradually, and to exercise the parts of your body which need reduction. These are usually upper arms, hips, buttocks and abdomen. Little can be done about the over-large bust other than to wear well supporting brassieres.

You Will Be Slim

If you are overweight and have not been exercising certain muscles during the past months, your body will be stiff when you first begin to roll and bump! But bear up under the stiffness and soreness for the first week and you will see how quickly those muscles will respond to your dictation. Your body will coordinate with your wishes and soon you will be standing, walking and dancing in better poise. The pounds will be distributed more evenly and excess weight will vanish.

Write me, care of this paper, which portion of your body requires reducing and I shall send you specific exercises. You must enclose a self-addressed envelope, bearing a three cent stamp for my reply.

Exercise two is to stretch and strengthen your abdomen muscles. It will be difficult at first but the third or fourth day will find you wanting to get down on the floor to go through it. As it eases back muscles as well.

Lie flat on the floor hands behind neck. Have a sofa pillow within reach of your feet. Pick up the pillow with your feet and raise it high without bending your knees. Raise it slowly and then lower it slowly. Do this five times the first day, ten times the second day, fifteen times the third day, and twenty times thereafter.

PERSONAL APPEAL

The spreading of a false rumor is so bewildering and so serious that I am now making a frank appeal to my readers to help me—if they can—to trace its source.

This winter occasional anonymous letters have taken me to task for belittling the social standing of a trained nurse. Some of the letters say that my unfair remark appeared in this column, others say it was broadcast. The remark varies, but in substance it is the same: immodest and untrue. And yet the rumor persists! This is why I am asking you, my readers, for your help. Therefore, if you have ever seen anything in print that purported to be written by me, or if you have heard any opinion given on the radio, announced as mine which in any way belittled the social standing of a trained nurse, I will be grateful for such information. Meanwhile I repeat, I have never referred to a trained nurse other than as one whose social position is of the highest.

Proper Respect?

Dear Mr. Post, My sister and I are naturalized Swedish-Americans and it is this fact that has brought about the following argument. I contend that if we had been fortunate enough to meet visiting royalty we would not have been expected to curtsy to them now that we are Americans. My sister says the American-born people might be forgiven for lack of training in proper respect to royalty since in America there is little thought of kings and queens, but that for people like us, who were brought up to understand this proper respect, there would be no excuse. Will you arbitrate our family difference?

Answer: All I can say is that no human being gains in dignity or importance by refusing to be polite. Your attitude would not have proved anything but that you did not know the proper behavior to royalty. In your case this would have been an unfortunate piece of knowledge better left unknown.

The Bride's Mother's Obligations.

Dear Mr. Post, What are the obligations of a bride's mother to the family of the bride who will be her hostess for four or five days of the time of the wedding? I am buying my own clothes of course and also giving the bride a wedding present, but to what extent is I indebted to her family who is entertaining me?

Answer: Your only indebtedness is to pay for your own wedding clothes and to buy the bride a wedding present, which you already know. In addition to the wedding the bride's mother has a thank you note after you return home. There is nothing else.

FUN TO MAKE

Pattern 4155

A heart-breaker if there ever was one—this adorably frivolous, utterly feminine little Anne Adams dress. And a heap of fun to make, too! With the easy-to-follow Instruction Sheet that accompanies Pattern 4155, even a beginner could cut and baste and stitch up this dress like an old hand. The smooth-fitting, high-pointed girder makes your waist look trim and little, in dramatic contrast to the flare of the skirt and the soft, full bodice. The grace of the low V-neck is enhanced by ruffles and a cluster of bright flowers. Cut the sleeves short and wide, or finish them off with a perky surprise bow.

Pattern 4155 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 31 yards 39 inch fabric and 1 yard ruffling.

SWINGLESS COLLEGIANS

Barbourville, Ky. (AP)—Swing is out and square dances are in at Union College.

School officials, turning thumbs down on modern dances and music, said students received enthusiastically the faculty-approved old time square dance in the college gym.

The ban on swing music extends to the college orchestra, which is forbidden to practice "swing."

Chapter 48

The Band-Up

INSIDE the Randall house, Assey greeted Kay absentmindedly.

"You, hum? Bout time. Wait outside, Ham. Sit down, Kay. Listen an' don't interrupt. You got a job?"

She was white-faced when she came out on the porch a short while afterwards.

"Hamilton," Assey's voice had the quaver of a ring to it.

"Yes, sir," Hamilton raced indoors.

"Go to the Town Hall," Assey said. "Just before the last dance, give these notes to Mr. an' Mrs. Leach, Weston, Brinley, his wife, Win Billings, Madame Meaux, and Jane an' Slade. Give this one to Zeb an' see he starts right along. Corral the others an' take 'em to Aunt Sara's an' see they go, an' stay. Lane or someone'll tell you what to do from there. Get 'em all an' keep 'em all, see? Beat it!"

Of all the group assembled finally in Aunt Sara's living room, no one was more bewildered than Hamilton himself.

Lane came at last. "All here?" Come along, please."

He marshaled them into their cars, whispered orders to Hamilton, and acted as a rear guard to the procession up to the hollow.

"Now," he said, "if you'll come indoors."

"Why?" Sara demanded with asperity. "What is this nonsense?"

"Why?"

"Assey's orders, ma'am. Lane said with finality."

Assey himself came out in a moment.

"Sorry to keep you waitin'," he said, "but on the whole, I thought it might be a good thing to have you all here together. Some things has got to be cleared up."

Another figure appeared behind him.

"Ms. Brinley said in choked voice, "Paterson?"

"The auditor," Sara's voice was even more choked.

"If you'll all come in," Assey said blantly, "maybe we can settle some things."

He was tremendously solicitous about finding seats for them all in the living room. Sara couldn't help thinking how her gray cat had the same manner while he waited at a house hold—bland, casual, and apparently not a bit eager.

"Now, Assey said, do let us get this shontage fixed up first."

Sara and Jeff exchanged glances.

Child Would be Better Off Without Worthless Father

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I married my first sweetheart when I was 16, almost two years ago. As my husband did not have a job, we lived with my parents and they have supported us ever since. I knew my husband was wild and drank a great deal, but I thought he would quit and settle down after we were married, but instead he became worse than ever. He is out every night and sometimes all night and comes home drunk, and he won't work. He shows no respect for my parents, who have done so much for him and he has treated me so badly that I have quit caring for him. I would leave him if it wasn't for my baby. Would it be best for her to have a daddy and do without the things she needs and be unhappy because he is a drunkard, or to do without a daddy and let me go to work and support her? Would people look down on her because I divorced her father?

V. S.

Answer:

Whether a father is an asset or a liability depends upon what kind of a father he is and certainly the lazy, good-for-nothing, sponging, drunken son you have given your child will be no credit to her. She will be a thousand times better off without him than with him.

A good father is one of the greatest blessings that any child can have. There is nothing that helps children to grow up into being the right sort of men and women so much as having a father who gives them the security of a home and to whom they look up with almost the reverence and trust that they do to God; who rules them with firmness and justice and loving kindness and wisdom, and to whom they can always go with their troubles and perplexities, sure of understanding and help.

But a bad father is a curse upon those who are unfortunate enough to be his children. He degrades them and shames them. He abuses and mistreats them. His influence only too often drags them down into the pit in which he wallows.

Any man who tries to break down a young married woman's morals and convince her that virtue and decency are old-fashioned and that there is no harm in her doubling-crossing her husband bodes her no good, and the less she has to do with him the better it will be for her. It is to get out of it after you are once in a mess. So don't allow yourself to be tempted. Give it a wide berth. You have a good husband and he loves you, but he won't love you long if he finds out that you are flirting with other men.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Should a woman who has done her best for twenty years to stay married to a man who has been unfaithful to her, and mean and insulting and disagreeable to live with, continue to endure such a hell on earth, or has she a right to a little peace and rest and comfort in life? That is my story. I have done my duty by my husband and my children. The children have now reached maturity and don't need me, and I would just love to go off somewhere and live quietly by myself, with nobody to find fault with me and tyrannize over me and quarrel about everything that I did and didn't do. Some time ago I received a little inheritance that would enable me to do this. Have I a right to take this happiness?

MRS. K.

Answer:

Surely you have. When a husband makes life unendurable for his wife he forfeits all his rights on her. You have served your sentence and you have earned your right to spend your last day in peace.

shut up! First things seemed to be against the town, an' then against Mary Randall, an' then Jane—with so much planted on her, an' then Eloise. As a matter of fact, we just got two motives. One's money—the town's money. The other's pure hate. The money come first, an' the hate come in later. The money come in because someone got ambitious, an' the hate part's mostly on account of Jane Warren—whatn time's the matter out there. Hamilton!"

"I didn't hear anything," Hamilton said truthfully.

"Go see—"

Hamilton went outdoors. When he returned his face was drained of color.

"Assey—that figure! Assey, look—look out the window!"

This whole group rushed to the front door, and every head turned toward the four figures, more grotesque than ever under the moonlight.

"What figure?" Sara said. "They—its moving?"

"Nonsense," Jeff said. "But one of the figures was moving."

It fell down, righted itself, and stood up again. The face was a glob of chalky white, apparently without any features at all. Suddenly it wheeled and ran with a peculiar swaying stride around to the back of the house.

"The kitchen, Lane!" Assey yelled.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

"Cut it off, outside there! We'll go through the house!"

He avoided the skeptical eyes of Madame Meaux as he rushed out to the kitchen, with the rest following pell mell behind him.

"Snap on the lights, Hamilton!"

Assey ordered. "They—well, light that candle if they don't work, then—my gosh!"

There was no sight or trace of the beaver-hatted dummy, but at the head of the cellar stairs appeared an odd glint of light, and a smell that Mike Slade vaguely associated with fireworks.

"What'n time," Assey began, is—"Jane!" It was Eloise Randall's voice that sounded from the cellar. "I really think—that is, of course—" Mike Slade blinked. He almost seemed to see Eloise before him in that old checked skirt with the uneven hem and the baggy cardinal with the hole in the sleeve.

"Eloise!" he said, and put out a hand to prop up Mrs. Brinley.

"Of course," Jane really wants to mean, one can't really tell, can one? Can one, Weston? Weston thought, at least, I think he thought, that he killed me yesterday, but Weston—where are you, Weston?"

"He's gone!"

Sara Leach swung around. Weston had been standing behind her and Jeff.

"Weston!" Sara said. "He's gone! He—he's gone! He was right here, but he's slipped away—"

"Okay," Assey said. "Lights, Hamilton. No, Mike, don't follow. Come up from the cellar, Kay. Zeb, come out of the closet—"

"Assey," Sara said, "what— you don't mean that it was Weston, do you? You—are you letting him get away?"

A series of shots outside answered her question.

In a moment, Lane came in.

"I got as far as 'I arrest,'" he said. "He said, 'we'd never get him alive, and we didn't. There's his gun. The silencer's in his car. Here. He said to give it to you—'"

Assey turned away. It came over Madame Meaux that Weston was his cousin. After a second he turned back, as calm as ever. There, the soprano thought, was New England for you.

"Look after things, Lane," Assey said. "Kay, that was fine. You deserve prizes for your imitation. Wash the dough off Zeb's face. It drives me crazy. I'm sorry, the rest of you. We had to do it. We give him a chance to admit it, but we had to keep on an 'try his imagination—what is it, Sara?"

"A chair," Sara said. "And a glass of water. Assey, I don't—I can't believe it!"

She stared at Kay as the girl washed thick dough from Zeb's face. The dummy's clothes hung limply from his body. General Philbrick came up from the cellar.

"How was the effect?" he inquired. "I think it worked, don't you? Down there it was fine."

He took two pans to the sink and nonchalantly began to wash them. Already in his mind he saw the headlines. "Fireworks Magnate Aids Capture of Murderer. Philbrick's Fireworks Help Detective."

"Assey," Sara said, "I shall go mad—hurry and tell us, and get Jeff a chair. He's shaking—"

"Was it Weston's accounts?" Jeff asked in a forced voice. "Weston's?"

"I don't wonder," Assey said, "you thought you was gettin' old. Brinley's been gypin' in a small way, to make you seem dumb, but Weston knew, an' was doin' a much better job on top of that. We got all the books tonight, from everywhere—town offices, your house, Weston's, Brinley's. Win Billings said it didn't go in the red an' for fun I went to Boston an' got Paterson today. Didn't know then which of you three selectmen it was. I'll take Paterson weeks to straighten things out, but Weston's plucked a hundred odd thousand, an' judgin' from his calculations, he—"

"What?" Jeff said. "A hundred thousand?"

"Over a period of years. He aimed to get as much more this week. He also had two steamship tickets for tomorrow night."

"No wonder," Slade said grimly, "no wonder he wanted to make Old Home Week a success!"

"What do you mean, two tickets?" Sara asked. "Who two?"

"For him, an' Eloise."

"For him and—Eloise?" Sara said. "And Eloise? I—I never thought. But everyone thought that was off."

"It wasn't Jane. Eloise hated you, didn't she? And she hated Mary, too. Eloise was ineffectual, an' her mother wasn't. It riled Eloise."

"Then it was Eloise and Weston at night?" Jane said. "She told Mary it was me, meeting Mike!"

Pedestrian Accidents Occur Mostly at Night

Night brings death to the pedestrian.

When the sun sets, pedestrian accidents begin to rise. The National Safety council in a bulletin to the Outagamie Safety council has issued this warning to those who walk either on city streets or on rural highways.

"Remember that drivers can't see you as well as you can see their cars," the council warns. "Don't depend on them to avoid you. In the city cross only at crosswalks and preferably at lighted intersections. On rural highways wear light clothing at night and carry a light or at least a reflector button. When cars pass, step off the road. Walk on the left side of the roadway."

Wisconsin Ducks Go South But Come Back in the Spring

Madison — The same Wisconsin duck winging its way to the south-land in the fall is apt to again be a Wisconsin duck in the spring, according to W. F. Grimmer, superintendent of game management for the conservation department, who says that for five consecutive years three mallard drakes have apparently migrated north and south through Wisconsin with the movements of other migratory waterfowl.

For five years they probably stopped in Wisconsin to feed and rest and possibly to mate, but in the fall of 1938 all three birds fell in one day from one flock before the hunters' guns near Lake Koshkonong in Jefferson county, Grimmer said. Two of them were wearing conservation department bird bands and all of them had federal biological survey bands on their legs.

According to William Williams of Palmyra, his father-in-law, Harry Molstad, banded and released these three mallard drakes among others near Palmyra in 1934. The three birds had moved with wild flocks until they were finally killed only 15 miles away from where they had been originally released.

"This record further proves the contention that ducks have family ties and will return to their native home," Grimmer said.

To a Woman, Every Day is "EXPOSITION" Day

"Wait a minute!" says the typical woman, faced by a camera. Why? Because that picture is a lasting "Exposition" . . . she must look her best.

Tastes are "focused" on coffee

Remember this about coffee — it is the lasting "Exposition" of the meal. And tastes "take it" — rich or poor in flavor — just as they had it in the cup. How important then to serve Hills Bros. Coffee! For 61 years its marvelous flavor has satisfied the most sensitive tastes. The millions of men and women who drink Hills Bros. Coffee daily make this candid remark over and over again — "No, that's what I call good coffee!"

Poles for Lighting

Equipment are Placed

Nine poles rising about 70 feet above the surface of the ground were placed by workmen yesterday to carry the floodlighting equipment at Spencer street athletic field according to Louis Luebke, city electrical inspector. Workmen today were setting steel steps on the poles in preparations for stringing wires and setting the lights.

Watchmakers Will Hold State Convention Here

The Appleton Watchmakers guild will be host to the state convention on June 18-19, the first time a city other than Milwaukee has been awarded the meeting. R. L. Avery, president of the Appleton unit, is in charge of arrangements.

Legion, Auxiliary For Memorial Day Announce Program

New London Observance To Open With 9 O'Clock Water Service

New London—Complete plans for the annual Memorial day services next Tuesday, May 30, have been arranged by the American Legion and auxiliary and were announced this week by Emil Gehrke, chairman.

A new Memorial plat will be established at Floral Hill cemetery this year through the cooperation of the Women's Relief corps and the American Legion, to be used each Memorial day hereafter to honor veterans of all wars.

The plat, located in the southeast section of the cemetery, was purchased years ago by the New London G. A. R. post and for some time was used as the site for Memorial day services. In recent years the American Legion has conducted rites over the grave of the last departed veteran. The Women's Relief corps at its last meeting granted the future use of the G. A. R. plat to the Legion as a permanent memorial to veterans of all wars. A monument for this purpose may be erected on the plat in the future.

Band Will Perform

Memorial day observances will begin at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning with a water service over the Wolf river at the American Legion clubhouse. Water wreaths will be dropped by Teddy Wynn and Gloria Krueger. The Rev. H. P. Reksdahl of the Congregational church will give the invocation and benediction at all of the morning's services and the New London High school band will provide all music and lead the marching. A gun salute and taps will be part of the water and cemetery services.

Parade to School

After the water service, a parade will be held from the Legion clubhouse to the Washington High school auditorium where District Attorney Paul E. Roman of Waukegan will give the public Memorial day address. Readings will be given by Mrs. Richard Gehrke and three high school students. Cordell Myers will recite "America's Reply," Mary Therens, "Flanders' Field," and Dick Wyman, "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address."

Services will follow at the new Floral Hill cemetery Memorial plat, featuring a floral tribute by six children, Barbara Van Alstine, Joyce Herres, June Humblett, Anna Mae Jagoditch, Ruth Ann Charlesworth and Jean DeGroot. Mrs. James Graham also will sing a vocal solo in addition to the prayers and military rites.

The annual Sunday Memorial church services will be held this year at 10:30 Sunday morning at St. John's Episcopal church with the Rev. F. S. Dayton, pastor, in charge. Patriotic groups in the city plan to attend in a body.

Gila Monsters Win Intramural Softball Title at High School

New London—The Gila Monsters took the Class A and Washington High school boys' all-school intramural softball title in a double-header victory at the city ball park yesterday afternoon to conclude activities for the school year.

Captained by Art Davy, the Gila Monsters swamped Anton Herres' Polecats 14 to 2 to break a first place tie for the Class A title and then trimmed the Mountain Boys, Class B champs, 12 to 7 for the all-school pennant. Earl Worm did the hurling for the winners.

On the championship squad, whose names will be posted on the intramural plaque, are Art Davy, captain, Dean Jeffers, assistant; Robert Nelson, Arden Smith, Glenn Smith, William Krause, Howard Fox, Earl Worm, David Wilson and Lloyd Bodoh. Making up the rest of the Class B champs, the Mountain Boys were Jack Christensen, captain, Ralph Holliday, assistant, James Kuehlman, Vernon Pieper, Leon Bodoh, David Ruh-sam, Robert Scerins, Gene Wyman, Marilyn Brown and Jack Dent.

The Weasels and Mud Puppies tied for third in Class A with two wins and four defeats. The Skunk Hollowers and Dog Patchers tied for second in Class B with three wins each and the Rinky Dinks trailed with one game to their credit.

Kaukauna — With three impressive victories to their credit, the undeclared Mellow Brews of the Fox River valley league will have their eyes on number four as Manitowoc comes to town Sunday afternoon. With the first ladies' day of the season on hand a record attendance is expected.

Schuler went all the way to defeat Menasha in the opener, and leads the Kaw staff with two wins. Bob Gresenz received credit for the New London game, although Schuler came in in the innings to halt an emergency. Gresenz will probably receive credit this week, with Schuler and Ray Diedrick available for relief duty.

The Kaws slipped a bit in batting last Sunday, collecting only seven blows off Nockertis of Green Bay. Kaukauna has now been to bat 97 times and connected safely 27 times for a team average of .274.

Carl Schuler continues to the individual batting leader, with 5 hits in 9 times up for an average of .555. Following Schuler are Joey Vils, 4 out of 9 for .444; Icky Van Drasek, 4 out of 12 for .333; Ralph Wurdinger, 4 out of 12 for .333; Gib Busse, 3 out of 10 for .300; Joey Geriz, 2 out of 10 for .200; Vee Kappell, 2 out of 12 for .166; Eddie Schuler, 1 out of 7 for .143; and Junior Martens, 1 out of 11 for .090. Gresenz failed to hit in four trips to the plate and Diedrick was unsuccessful once.
